Bakhtiar Arrested

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Iran's new regime today announced the arrest of deposed Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar and virtually completed a purge of leading generals. Meanwhile, sources in Morocco denied rumors that the shah had been kidnapped at his Marrakesh residence.

Iran's new provisional government appeared today to be making headway in its efforts to bring unruly supporters here under control. But gunmen assaulted the office of Iran's new premier and were driven off after a vicious firefight with militiamen.

And the newspaper Ettelaat reported that six persons had been hanged in Tabriz, 530 kilometres northwest of the capital, on orders of religious leaders and that insurgents had torn the emblem off the U.S. consulate there. Efforts to reach authorities in Tabriz for confirmation were unsuccessful.

Hospitals reported the final death toll in the climactic three-day battle for control of Iran which ended Monday was more than 850 dead and several thousand wounded.

According to conservative estimates, more than 10,000 people were killed in Iran in the 15 months leading to to the collapse of the 2,500-year-old Peacock Throne.

On the diplomatic front, the new Iranian government was recognized by the U.S.S.R. and Britain and the Carter administration was reported moving toward "normal diplomatic relations" with the fledgling government of Premier Mehdi Bazargan.

The Kremlin indicated that the Soviet Union views Iran as heading onto a revolutionary socialist path similar to those already being followed in Angola, Ethiopia and Afghanistan.

The Bazargan government, in a first move to try to rebuild a military establishment shattered by its lightning takeover, ordered all troops who deserted their barracks Monday to return to duty and senior officers of the army, navy and air force to report to Tehran immediately for a major conference.

Bazargan, named by the victorious Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to head his promised Islamic regime, also named a seven-man cabinet to try to revitalize Iran after 15 months of political chaos and street violence. The key position of foreign minister went to Dr. Karim Sanjabi, leader of the opposition National Front in the now dissolved Parliament.

Urban guerrillas roaming Tehran today continued their random "detention" of suspicious foreigners when they rounded up 40 British nationals and took them for questioning to Khomeini's headquarters for questioning. On Monday, much to the

Nkomo Claims 'Kill'

Times News Services

Rhodesian nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo has claimed his guerrilla followers shot down the Rhodesian Viscount airliner that crashed Monday, killing all 59 persons on board, Addis Ababa Radio reported today.

The radio, monitored in London, said Nkomo had told Ethiopian journalists "our men" brought down the plane, which crashed shortly after takeoff from the northern lakeside resort of Kariba.

Nkomo, co-leader of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, said his men were trying to hit a plane carrying Lieut.-Gen. Peter Walls, possibly the most powerful man in Rhodesia now that 90 per cent of the country is under military rule.

A Viscount carrying the general followed 15 minutes behind the plane that crashed. The general's plane arrived safely in Salisbury.

Nkomo is leader of the Zambia-based Zimbabwe African Peoples Union (ZAPU).

ZAPU claimed responsibility for a missile attack last September which downed another Air Rhodesia Viscount in the same area. That attack resulted in 48 dead.

In Salisbury, Prime Minister Ian Smith today partly blamed the United States and Britain because President Carter and British

VANCOUVER AREA HARDEST HIT

Winds Lash Province

High winds left a path of destruction — including several wrecked aircraft — on the Lower Mainland overnight but Victoria escaped the brunt of the storm.

The windstorm, gusting up to 90 kilometres an hour, downed trees and caused dozens of power outages in the Vancouver area and Fraser Valley. Harried B.C. Hydro crews were unable to keep up with the damage and many areas were still without power at mid-day.

Heavy snow resulted in many highway closures in the central and southern interior parts of the province.

At least five small airplanes were heavily damaged or destroyed at the Abbotsford airport, said a spokesman at the airport weather office.

There also were reports that two small aircraft were damaged at an airstrip near Chilliwack.

A tree crashed into the kitchen of a home and another crushed a car in Coquitlam, an RCMP spokesman said.

No injuries were reported in any of the incidents.

Two Victoria area pilots got a scare when their light planes were hit by turbulence in the air above Pat Bay airport this morning but both got their planes down safely.

The small planes were voluntarily grounded until the storm abated. Larger planes were flying on schedule.

A Vancouver weather office spokesman said the highest winds — 145 km/h — were recorded at Cape Beale on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Some scattered power outages were reported at 7:30 a.m. today in the northern Saanich peninsula and at Sooke as the wind knocked out utility lines. Service was restored quickly.

Winds forced cancellation of the Anacortes ferry but all B.C. Ferries operated normally on main routes. There were delays on some smaller vessels operating to Gulf Islands.

The windstorm was centred at mid-Island and passed over the Comox area on its way to the mainland. It was blowing itself out in the interior today.

The outlook for tonight and Wednesday is for calmer weather and milder temperatures.

Snow was the main problem in central and southern B.C. as slides caused by heavy snow resulted in several highway closures.

A highways ministry spokesman said the Rogers Pass section of the Trans-Canada Highway, east of Revelstoke, was closed because of a 200-metre-long snowslide.

Also blocked because of blizzards and slides were the Pine Pass on Highway 97, about 160 kilometres north of Prince George, Highway 16 between Terrace and Prince Rupert and the Salmo-Creston Highway in southeastern B.C.

GUNMAN SPRAYS CLEU

RCMP investigators are hunting a gunman who sprayed rifle fire at the Vancouver building which houses B.C.'s top crime-fighting team — the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit.

A CLEU spokesman said today at least two men were involved in the incident which occurred shortly after midnight Monday.

He said at least 15 shots were fired from a semi-automatic 30-calibre rifle by a gunman crouching in the rear of a car which was driven past the building on Vancouver's West Seventh Avenue.

CLEU is considered to be the province's chief law enforcement agency and is involved in investigations into organized crime, drugs and other racketeering.

The spokesman said the vehicle was described as an older-model car. He refused to give further details.

Bill Gives Commissioner Power to Probe Crashes

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill establishing an independent commissioner with wide powers to investigate air accidents as well as mishaps on railways, pipelines and other areas of federal jurisdiction was introduced in the Commons Monday.

Under the bill the commissioner would be appointed for a seven-year term and would have the authority to make recommendations on how future accidents might be avoided.

While his authority covers a wide range of transportation areas where Ottawa is responsible for safety, it does not include highway accidents nor military transportation.

Opposition parties have long sought such a independent authority although their demands have been concentrated on air safety, especially since the crash last year of a Pacific Western Airline jet at Cranbrook.

However, Transport Minister Otto Lang told reporters that the bill is not a priority item for the government. With an election call expected within the next two months, the bill might have to await a new government reintroducing it in a new Parliament.

Also included in the bill are powers for the commissioner to look into near-misses. Hundreds of just-avoided mishaps occur for every recorded accident and the transport department has long sought authority for these to be investigated.

While both air and ground crews have been reluctant to inform authorities of such near-misses, the department says it is seeking ways to have the name of the informant protected from being public.

After investigating accidents, which may include public hearings, the commissioner is to make a public report.

Lang says he expects no jurisdictional disputes between the commission and police forces "since the commission will be involved in determining cause of an accident and not in establishing guilt."

Lang said concerns of coroners about the confidentiality of evidence heard by the commissioner have been overcome.

Record Fleet Set For Herring Patrol

A record fleet of boats will be on hand to provide search and rescue service during the hazardous B.C. herring roe fishery, and naval reservists will be participating for the first time.

The reservists will man the Esquimalt-based HMCS Dauphine on patrol off the west coast of Vancouver Island and the east coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The season is expected to begin on or before March 4 in the Barkley Sound and Nanoose areas. This year's quota is 59,300 tons.

The widely-spread fishing grounds, openings that can last as little as 15 minutes, potential bad weather and rugged coastline make this fishery the most dangerous of the year.

In 1975, within a two-week period, there were 16 incidents and 14 fishermen lost their lives.

As in the past few years, air and marine search resources will be provided by the departments of national defence, transport, fisheries and environment.

Search and rescue crews will watch over the fishing fleet of about 1,500 vessels.

Labrador helicopters from CFB Comox's 442 Search and Rescue Squadron will be based at coastal airfields to be closer to the fishing grounds. Droppable pumps and liferafts will be carried by Buffalo aircraft

W. A. C. STATE NOW SERIOUS

KELOWNA (CP) — Former premier W. A. C. Bennett was reported in serious condition today by officials at the Kelowna General Hospital.

Bennett, premier of British Columbia for an unprecedented 20 years in the 1950s and 1960s, was admitted to hospital last Friday for tests. He has been ailing for some time.

On Monday, officials had said Bennett was in satisfactory condition and was improving, but he apparently took a turn for the worse overnight.

The 78-year-old former leader of the Social Credit Party is the father of current B.C. premier Bill Bennett.

Doman Up 86%

Doman Industries Ltd. of Duncan has reported 1978 net income of $11 million, an increase of 86 per cent over 1977's $5.9 million.

The company, largest timber firm based on Vancouver Island, topped the $100 million mark in sales for the first time at $115.3 million.

This was up 25 per cent from $92 million in 1977.

Earnings per share were $1.68, up from 90 cents. Cash flow from operations totalled $14.2 million, up 68 per cent from $8.4 million. Cash flow per share was $2.16, up from $1.28.

Fare War Zapping Gets Hotter

EDMONTON (CP) — Wardair Ltd., the Edmonton-based charter airline, is in the frontline of a fare war for charter business to Europe and no one knows where it will end.

"Who knows," said Wardair executive vice-resident Tom Spalding Monday. "They can't go much lower, unless they start throwing seats away."

Britain's Laker Airways fired the first shots in the war last week, announcing a $300 return fare between Toronto and various points in Britain booked 90 days in advance. Wardair quickly followed with a $309 return fare from Toronto to London, Manchester and Prestwick, booked 90 days in advance.

Air Canada and British Airways upped the stakes by slashing their peak-season Toronto-to-Britain charter-class fares to $299. Within hours Wardair matched the price, joining the two carriers at $299. Laker has made no response as yet.

Spalding says the new fares are "fenced in" with a number of conditions. The buyer must book three months ahead, pay within seven days of purchase, and there is no refund if the flight is cancelled. Changes can be made, although a higher fare for booking up to 30 days in advance goes into effect.

"It's not designed for the ordinary traveller. But it gives us the early-bird sales."

Travel from Britain to Canada is booming because of favorable currency exchange rates, but Spalding said travel from Canada to Britain is harder to determine this year.

"If we have the seats, and people can live with the conditions, they can go," he said.

Only a limited number of sets on each flight are available at charter-class fares and, in addition to the other limitations, travellers must stay in Britain between seven and 180 days.

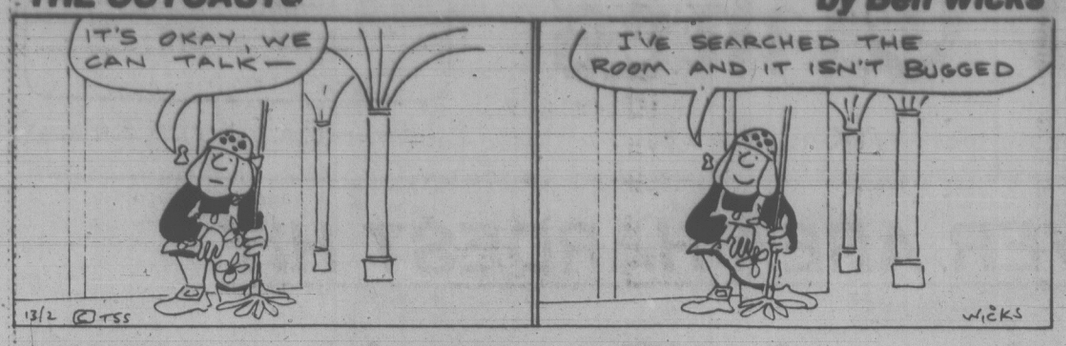
THE OUTCASTS by Ben Wicks



Damage to City Parks Hits an All-Time High

Vandalism in city parks caused almost $10,000 damage in 1978.

Parks director Cliff Bate said in a report released Monday that damage to Victoria parks reached an all-time high of $9,594 in 1978, compared to $3,787 in 1977.

The increase appears to shoot down Ald. Robin Blencoe's claim last year that people have become more respectful of public property. He made the claim when the 1977 figure proved to be lower than the 1976 total of $6,578.

Bate's itemized list of the acts of vandalism and their cost, seems endless.

"Toilets at Cook and Dallas firebombed (gas in beer bottle) . . . 21 pansies damaged by car . . . one concrete and wood bench damaged beyond repair . . . door to birdcage badly smashed"

Heading the list is $3,625 damage to small parks, up from $2,585 in 1977.

Vandalism in Beacon Hill Park comes next with $2,996. Damage there amounted to $662 the year before.

The theft of plants and flowers has also increased.

In Oak Bay, a report said improvements to Lafayette Park will cost $28,800 and hopefully will extend its use and protect the park from damage by vandals.

Vehicles being driven over the turf late at night have caused much damage and annoyance to neighbors, partly because of a lack of restraining curbs or fencing.

Drainage had been poor and the facilities generally under-used, said a report from parks and recreation superintendent Duncan Russell.

The plan has been recommended to council's estimates committee for the 1979 budget.

Scale-6.5 Earthquake Recorded

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — There was a large earthquake Monday night 225 miles southwest of Kodiak, but the offshore quake was too weak to create a tidal wave, the Tsunami Warning Center has reported.

Geophysicist John Sindorf said the quake had a preliminary magnitude of 6.5 on the Richter scale.

The earthquake was not felt at Kodiak or Sand Point but was felt at Chignik, which lies closer to the quake's epicenter, Sindorf said. All three cities are on the Alaska Peninsula.

There were no reports of damage from the quake, Sindorf said.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

New Curbs Again Denied

WINNIPEG (CP) — Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Warren Allmand said Monday the federal government definitely will not reintroduce wage and price controls.

Allmand told Manitoba members of the Consumers Association of Canada that the government expects increased profits to go into job creation, price moderation and capital investment and not exclusively into shareholders dividends.

"If we see people ignoring us, we'll just have to take some action," he said.

Although he refused to be specific when asked what kind of action he meant, Allmand said it would definitely not be in the form of wage and price controls.

Speaking only about food prices, he said the government already is taking action through better planning of production.

He expressed hope competing interests in the food picture, including consumers, farmers and retailers, can resolve differences through consultation.

However, he said food prices would continue increasing at an annual rate of 12 to 14 per cent over the next few months at least.

"The government's position is to allow food prices to reflect market conditions but at the same time afford assistance to those who are most affected — for example the elderly and low-income families."

On corporate concentration and rising profits in the food industry, he said federal anti-combines laws are being changed so mergers and monopolies can be controlled through civil law rather than criminal law with its greater burden of proof.

"Consumers should not expect that the government can wave a wand and thereby cause lower food prices. So much can be done, but no magic solutions."

Alert Sounded For Stolen $$ Collection

Banks and stores have been alerted by Saanich police to watch for persons offering part of a collection of silver dollars, stolen from a house in the 900-block Lodge Monday evening.

The collection has a face value of $500.

Police said entry was made by kicking in a back door between 7 and 9 p.m. when the occupants were out.

Crash Kills City Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have identified Kenneth Creighton, 43, of Victoria as the man killed early today in a single-vehicle accident here.

Police said the pickup truck he was driving went through a stop sign, crossed some railroad tracks, hit a sand pile and landed in a three-metre ditch.

Amin Refers Dispute To United Nations

NAIROBI (Reuter) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has asked the United Nations Security Council to discuss immediately the "explosive situation now prevailing on the Uganda-Tanzania border," Uganda radio reported today.

The radio quoted a military spokesman as saying U.S., British and Israeli mercenaries are fighting alongside Tanzanian forces which occupied a vast area of Uganda.

The broadcast quoted Amin as saying in a letter to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim:

"Although Tanzania has declared war against Uganda, Uganda has not declared war against a sister country.

"Right now the situation is very serious, and massive Tanzanian forces are fighting deep inside Uganda in two provinces and an area of approximately 350 square miles is in their hands."

Fighting has been taking place on the Uganda-Tanzania border west of Lake Victoria since last October.

Iran Turmoil Hurts Dollar

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar made marginal gains on Europe's money markets today, but dealers reported that the turmoil in Iran, concern over oil prices and the state of the U.S. economy are keeping the dollar weak.

The price of gold, which shot through the $250-an-ounce mark for the first time last week, eased and some brokers said that rise was "probably overdone" and expect it "to consolidate for the time being."

In dollar dealing, brokers around Europe said they expected central bank intervention to prop up the ailing U.S. currency would offset any downward pressure for the time being.

Dealers reported dollar trading was quiet, but noted the outlook for the currency is poor, particularly following President Jimmy Carter's warning last week that the U.S. economy still has problems and that prices will likely rise.

In London, it cost $2.0037 to buy one British pound.

Schipperke is breed that originated in Belgium way back around 1600 and were originally used as watch dogs aboard barges. Since dogs only grew to about 15 pounds, owners relied on bark rather than bite to forestall thieves. Four pups shown here all need good homes. The two females cost $55 apiece, which includes spaying, first shot and medical examination, while the two males can be had for $20 each, including shot and medical. Pilot Was Drunk Before Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal safety investigators said Monday the crash of a Japan Air Lines cargo plane at Anchorage, Alaska, was caused by actions of a pilot who was, by legal standards, drunk.

JAL captain Hugh Marsh, 53, lifted the nose of his DC-8 jetliner too soon from the Anchorage runway, losing air speed 50 metres above the ground and crashing 330 metres from the end of the strip, the investigators said.

Marsh, his Japanese co-pilot and flight engineer as well as two cattle handlers were killed in the crash Jan. 13, 1977.

The National Transportation Safety Board said Marsh's attempts to control the aircraft were hampered by ice on the front edge of a wing.

But, the board said: "The captain's physical and mental states were such that he could not effectively control the aircraft."

The safety board said tests showed the blood alcohol level in the captain was three times that considered legally intoxicating for drivers in the state of Alaska.

They'd Have to Invent Him

Just what is it that Jim Kinnaird wants?

Judging from his latest comments, one would be hard put to dispute the cynic's view that the answer to that question is: something to make a fuss about, no matter how farfetched.

Kinnaird, as president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, is the man who has been leading the federation in its vitriolic opposition to the policies of the Social Credit government. Although the specific target of opposition has been essential services legislation, behind it has been the ever-present threat of right-to-work legislation.

In brochures, in speeches, in remarks to the press, Kinnaird and other federation members have constantly warned that, in their opinion, the Socreds are planning some kind of right-to-work legislation for B.C. Equally constantly, they have asked Premier Bill Bennett and Labor Minister Allan Williams to deny that they have any such intentions.

So, a while ago, the government ministers obliged. They said they had no intention of implementing right-to-work legislation "at this time."

But that wasn't enough for Kinnaird & Co. They latched onto the final phrase, "at this time," and practically used it as proof of their original proposition. The addition of the phrase, they argued, meant that the Socreds were planning to introduce it at some future time, presumably when they thought it would be the most politically popular.

Kinnaird continued to harp on the theme at a series of rallies round the province, warning first that right-to-work would lead to an "industrial relations bloodbath" in B.C., then changing it to an "industrial relations nightmare" when the word bloodbath attracted unfavorable publicity. Again, he called on the government to deny categorically that it was considering such legislation.

So, again the Socreds obliged. Bennett said he would never introduce right-to-work legislation as long as he was premier. He said he agreed with Kinnaird, that such legislation wouldn't improve the labor-management climate in B.C.

And what has been Kinnaird's answer now? Has he abandoned the issue, having gained the categorical denial he sought?

Not a bit of it. He has said, in essence, that he doesn't believe the premier. It's not that he doubts his integrity, but he just doesn't think Bennett will be able to control the elements of his caucus and cabinet that are in favor of right-to-work. Kinnaird says right-to-work legislation might be brought in under a different name.

All that, of course, gives him a perfect opportunity to keep travelling the province raising the spectre of this horrible legislation, even though there appears to be no basis whatsoever for it in reality.

The result of the whole performance is to damage severely the credibility of the labor movement in B.C. Heaven knows, there are plenty of things for unionists to complain about in the government's performance without bothering about things that haven't happened and aren't likely to.

Because the labor movement is so closely tied in with the NDP and because the NDP has, more quietly, also been flogging the right-to-work theme, the credibility of that party is also being hurt.

If Bill Bennett didn't have Jim Kinnaird around at the moment, he'd have to invent him.

Whistle While You Work?

Whistling while you work may be a sign of the happy, industrious employees that bosses everywhere welcome, but at the post office it most definitely does not have the stamp of approval.

Believe it or not, but after 2½ years and who knows how many thousands of dollars, a federal tribunal has ruled that whistling and singing on the job constitute insubordination.

A number of sorters had come to work happy at a Montreal post office the night the incident occurred because the Montreal Canadiens had won a hockey game. At first they sang but a supervisor told them to stop. Then some of them started whistling as they sorted mail.

A postal supervisor told the federal Public Service Staff Relations Board, which ruled on the incident, that whistling is forbidden when it disturbs other employees, although there is no specific regulation prohibiting whistling or singing.

The board adjudicator who heard the case said he didn't doubt that the singing and whistling disrupted work, and those who were whistling had disobeyed their supervisor's order to stop singing, "for whistling is really only a kind of singing."

But he ordered reinstatement and back pay for the two clerks, who had been suspended from their jobs for three months, because the punishment was arbitrary: the post office punished two individuals for whistling while other whistlers suffered no punishment.

And you ask, madam, why it soon will cost 17 cents to mail a letter across the country? Or what happened to Uncle Bill's Christmas parcel from down home? Tut, tut — the post office has important business to carry out.

Big John Comes on Strong

WASHINGTON — Old men running for the presidency of the United States are like old men who take young brides. It's an exciting idea for awhile but it seldom works.

Maybe John Connally can make it work this time, but timing in politics, as in love, is everything, and Big John always seems to be arriving or departing at the wrong time.

If he had stayed in the Democratic party in 1972 instead of campaigning for Nixon and against George McGovern, he might have taken it over after McGovern's defeat or at least inherited the wreckage. Likewise, he joined Nixon's ship just before it was beginning to sink and won the support of Nixon just when Nixon lost the support of the American people.

Now, at almost 62, denounced by the Democrats as a turncoat and resented by many Republicans as a presumptuous newcomer, he has finally made a formal announcement of his lifelong ambition.

Latter-day Lincoln?

As usual, he came in with a bang. There has always been something gloriously and unshamedly brash about Connally. Not so long ago a reporter couldn't even get him on the telephone, but here he was at the National Press Club, greeting strangers like old buddies, as if he'd never been away. He dismissed President Carter as a nice, sincere man who was "wrong for the times" and offered himself, without excessive modesty as the man to lead the nation out of its fourth great crisis, as General Washington, Mr. Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt had led it out of the first three.

Big John is as subtle as a punch in the nose. Like that other Texan, Roger Staubach, he passes from the shotgun formation — telling you in advance he's going to throw the ball and then throwing it down your throat.

Connally is not going to have an easy or a very pleasant time. Reagan's supporters will resent his effort to capture or split the conservative Republican vote, already somewhat divided by the candidacy of Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois.

In fact, there is a danger that a crowded conservative field could fragment the conservative vote in the Republican party and help the cause of the moderate Republican hopeful — George Bush of Texas, former CIA director and former ambassador to the UN and special emissary to the People's Republic of China.

Accordingly, without control of the Republican party in Texas, and with strong opposition from Reagan, Connally's hope lies in capturing the party in the primary elections. Here his talents should not be underestimated.

JOHN CONNALLY
. . . subtle as punch in nose

He is a superb public speaker, he looks like a president and he has no doubts. This is precisely why so many people distrust him, but in the primary elections, where energy and personality are so important, he could be a formidable candidate.

Connally is counting on the assumption that Carter doesn't look or sound like the sort of leader he thinks the American people want — too weak and mild, too conscious of the limitations of American power, and the ambiguities of world political problems.

Connally insists that the president has "little sense of strategy and little sense of the use of power on a global scale." His suggestion is that what Carter lacks, Connally has.

He talks as if nothing has changed in the world since he used to work here when Washington was clearly the dominant military and economic power in the world, and he describes the United States under Carter almost in Nixon terms, as inefficient at home and almost helpless overseas.

Reagan, Crane, Dole and even Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, if he joins the race, will probably make roughly the same argument, but Connally will shout it through the primaries in a campaign that will probably be vaguely but noisily protectionist and populist — and never mind the contradictions.

At Wrong Time

Incidentally, the White House is not at all disturbed by Connally's formal entrance into the presidential race. Carter's people think the president has moved far enough to the right to capture the middle. They are satisfied to have Reagan and Connally fight it out for the conservative vote, believing that this will divide the Republicans and leave the moderate-voting majority to the president — even if Carter is challenged in his own party by Sen. Edward Kennedy on the left and Gov. Jerry Brown of California on the right.

Meanwhile, Connally fascinates this city. Like so many of his predecessors, he is not so interesting as a candidate as one more central character in a psychological novel.

He recalls the might-have-beens of American politics — the men like Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York, and Adlai Stevenson, who might have made it, but came to the top of the heap at the wrong time.

End Up Losing

North Saanich Mayor George Westwood has indicated he will oppose any development on the Bosun's Marina property, regardless of the zoning. His actions to date confirm that he has firmed up his political position.

Now that the smoke has cleared and our offer to transfer the majority of this land and shoreline from private to public ownership has been dismissed, let's look at the facts.

We became involved in Bosun's at the invitation of the former owners who were in danger of foreclosure and three years behind in taxes. For many years the land had been zoned commercial marina, and a resolution of council (supported by Mr. Westwood) on Jan. 17, 1977 approved its removal from the agricultural land reserve. On the strength of this resolution and after discussions with former mayor Paul Grieve, we purchased the property on June 15, 1977. In October the same year, the most of our land was down-zoned to residential. We offered to transfer 3,000 feet of waterfront to public ownership, in return for limited marina expansion and housing.

Our neighbors became concerned after the frenzied drum-beating of a powerful little group, which painted a completely erroneous picture of wall-to-wall boats and boathouses, devastation of all the trees and high-density, low-cost housing springing up from a sea of blacktop. These scare tactics brought immediate response from genuinely concerned environmentalists and a petition was circulated. The municipal election was imminent and George Westwood seized this emotional issue and its innuendoes to shore up his campaign.

Throughout the controversy, much was made of the bird sanctuary reserved in 1931, though it was not legalized until 1976. This sanctuary was originally requested by residents who were concerned about hunters shooting close to their homes and this was the easy way to put a stop to them. Dr. Ed Anderson's year-long study of waterfowl reveals that 32 of 33 species using the inlet prefer Roberts Bay, even though it is fully developed with housing. This study substantiates previous findings of the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Responding to the concerns of neighbors and environmentalists, we suggested a further trade-off that would meet the future needs of the birds, boaters and residents. It would have assured public ownership of the shoreline of Blue Heron Bay and Tsehum Inlet, the preservation of the 12-acre treed area as a nature sanctuary, Nymph Point as parkland, no breakwater or any further expansion of boathouses and a long-term option to pick up the the remaining residential land. We asked in return for limited expansion of our marina to make it an economic venture.

The mayor referred the matter to the Advisory Planning Commission, a cross-section of the community. They met for a year, listened to public opinion, expert testimony and finally made a recommendation to council. At the same time, an independent report was submitted by the municipal planner. Both of these reports recommended limited marina expansion in return for the transfer from private into public ownership, waterfront land and treed acreage.

Mayor Westwood dismissed these recommendations out of hand and indicated that he would oppose any development on the site, regardless of zoning. While listening to that vocal few, the mayor has ignored the silent majority. Because of this stand, the birds, the boaters and the people will end up the losers. — Robert Wright, North Saanich Marina Ltd.

Not For Sale?

Being a recent arrival to Canada, I have spent the past few weeks scratching the surface of Canadian history, trying to find out what my new home is all about.

At first I was astonished to discover that, though I had left the United States to come to Canada, much of Canada seems to be owned, run or at least extensively influenced by the U.S. While this is obviously to the advantage of the U.S. and its businessmen, I cannot understand how the selling of Canadian resources and markets to the U.S. or any other country can at all benefit in the long run — which seems to be the "run" least looked after here — the Canadian people.

After my somewhat cursory research, which I plan to continue as long as I remain in Canada, I am not shocked by the recent sale of another Canadian business to the U.S., namely Gray Line bus tours of Victoria.

I am appalled and greatly saddened. While a single bus line in a single city may not seem to make much difference, it is not the particular sale that is important, but rather the general pattern it stems from, that of letting Americans supply the capital and reap and take home the profits from Canadian business.

Opposition to this and any other sale of Canada by Canada to an outside source has nothing to do with the "hysterical anti-Americanism" that Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis suggests is behind opposition to the sale of Gray Lines to a Seattle firm. It has to do with being concerned about Canada's present and future. The more fingers the U.S. has in the Canadian pie, the less that pie can be called Canadian at all. If B.C. is really "not for sale," what does the sale of Gray Lines mean? Or does this recent slogan of the B.C. government apply only to Canadians? — Chantal Perrot, 1125 Hillside Avenue.

No Duplication

I wish to draw your attention to an obvious error or misunderstanding in a quote in the editorial Reforestation in the Times Jan. 20.

Correctly stated, the article should read: "In the Prince George region, the Forest Service surveyed 29,610 hectares of logged over forestland of which 82 per cent was satisfactorily restocked and private companies surveyed 5,980 hectares of logged over forestland of which 45 per cent was satisfactorily restocked."

No forestland surveyed was a duplication of effort as insinuated in the article. — D. T. Grant, Regional Manager, Ministry of Forests, Prince George.

Get an Architect

How much longer is the general public going to take the negligent behavior of many builders and unqualified individuals who are out to make a fast buck from the innocent home buyers.

Your article Feb. 6 regarding the AHOP dream home that is "breaking its back" gives a typical example where a building has not been designed correctly for its location.

Why doesn't the public learn from its mistakes and ask the advice of a qualified architect, one of the few people around who have been trained for seven years to serve the public in just these kinds of matters?

Surely it is worth spending the time and effort having your biggest lifetime investment checked out by someone who can give you unbiased and professional advice.

The saving you would make in the long run could be the difference between total loss and a true investment. — C. O. Bennett, 356 Robertson Street.

'Not Here'

Re: the proposed group home for the mentally handicapped on Redfern Street:

The house offers a sense of order and hope to others. But whether it is a government building or otherwise, if it is for the outlaw or the helpless, the cry is too often "not here."

Many handicapped can express one constructive talent well, but sometimes need help and encouragement to do so, even the mentally handicapped. Let us not go back to the old ways, when the handicapped walked the streets, they were expected to keep close to the walls. — Mrs. B. Brazil, 676 Battery Street.

'A Place Where We Must Learn from One Another'

By TOM HARPUR
Toronto Star

TROSLY-BREUIL, France — The ravage and tragedy of two world wars have swept angrily around this tiny, ancient village of Trosly-Breuil, near the town of Compiegne in the valley of the River Oise, about 40 miles northeast of Paris.

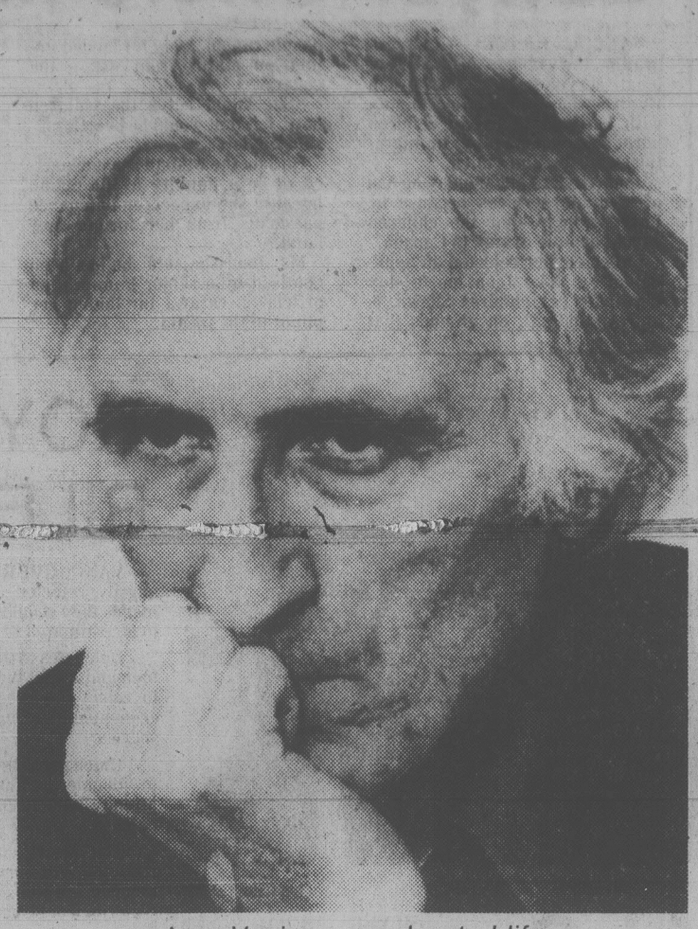
Yet, for millions around the globe it now stands as a unique symbol and source of hope. Here, since 1964, one of Canada's most distinguished sons has championed the cause of the mentally handicapped and in the process has distilled a wisdom and insight which has powerful things to say to the so-called, normal world.

Jean Vanier, whose father was governor-general after a brilliant career which included being ambassador in London and Paris, has had more opportunities for personal advancement than most. Yet, he renounced them all and has devoted his life to living with and caring for the weak of the earth.

In so doing, he has learned what he is convinced is a crucial truth for the sad, the depressed, the frustrated, and the insecure — which includes all of us at times, when the "masks" of our defences are removed:

The seeds of human hope lie, not in the values so eagerly espoused by our society — money, power, success, sex, or good looks — but in finding how to accept your own and others' weakness.

Tall and rangy-looking, with a long angular face and a gift both for hilarity and a potent seriousness, the 50-year-old bachelor is clearly a mystic, many would say a saint. But his outlook and intellect are anything but other-worldly. He thinks, talks, and writes as a man who feels deeply the divisions of our strife-torn planet. His work with the weak has never let him forget those who seemingly are the strong.



Jean Vanier . . . a devoted life

A Place Of Refuge

We spent two days at L'Arche, as his scattered community here at Trosly-Breuil is named, and came away feeling we had been given a privileged glimpse of the true nature of what it means to be human.

L'Arche means the ark or place of refuge, so named after the Bible story of Noah and the great flood. Vanier's concept of work with the handicapped has so exploded that there are now over 100 such "arks" in almost every corner of the earth, including India, Africa, Haiti, and Honduras, with 25 in Canada alone.

Basic to his philosophy is the certainty he feels about the wrongness of any dogooder approach to those less fortunate than ourselves. There are about 160 volunteers from a wide range of countries here, including close to 100 from Canada, but those who come with the idea of "doing good" for the retarded are soon sent packing.

"L'Arche is a place of meeting," Vanier says. "It's a place where we all must learn from one another. The volunteer assistants have to lose their sense of the kick of doing good to others and see the handicapped as people who have much to teach us too."

This is not just pious or euphemistic jargon. Vanier points to what passes for normality in the world and says he is terrified by our too-easy acceptance of it when often it seems to mean acquiescence in aggressive competitiveness, domination of others, striving to needless possessions, fear of what others think, greed, lust, massive insecurity, and even violence.

"Normal people are often blind, so caught up in their own desires or a frenzy of pointless activism that they can't even see others around them," he says. "The handicapped person wears his weakness for all to see; he can't hide it. The rest of us are actually less honest. We hide our handicap behind a facade of success. Outwardly, we may smile, but inwardly there is a flight from anguish."

Ultimately, he argues, it is this putting up of barriers, this pretence that we are strong that is the source of all conflicts — and of the absolute conflict, war itself.

Trosly-Breuil, a picturesque hamlet of about 800 inhabitants, is almost buried in the vast forest of Compiegne. A damp, bone-chilling mist seeps up from the river at this time of year, obscuring outlines of trees and buildings and fringing everything with white lace as evening frost sets in.

The straggling houses and outbuildings are almost medieval in appearance, made of a local, yellowish-gray stone and heavily beamed with rough-hewn timbers. There is a quaint, outdoor wash-house where village women did their communal laundry, a lovely, open village square, and the smell of burning leaves and apple boughs hangs hauntingly in the air.

L'Arche has a number of focal buildings here and there — a gorgeous chapel made from what was once a stone storehouse or barn, a meeting hall, again a converted barn, and some offices. But, in keeping with Vanier's conviction that real community is the key to healing, the 160 handicapped live in separate houses with an equal number of volunteers. The average "family" runs at about 16 persons.

Vanier himself lives in a house in which eight handicapped and an equal number of volunteers share meals, household chores, and a mutual sharing which is shot through with all the joy, heartache, and plain, hard work which marks all healthy family life. But as we ate with them at dinner and helped with the washing-up afterwards, it was the deep sense of caring and the spontaneous laughter which struck us the most.

Everyone Has a Job

Some of the foyers or homes are in nearby villages, and in a couple of cases, where the handicapped are being prepared to move out on their own, a volunteer lives in an apartment with two others of the same sex, helping them adjust to being self-sufficient.

Everyone has a job to do, according to their ability. Some handicapped work in a series of workshops, subcontracting minor but essential tasks, such as fitting together hinges for refrigerator doors or putting insulation tubes together. Others, more able, make mosaics, pottery, or ikons for sale. Still others work on the land. Acres of garden have been created out of what was once swamp. A sense of useful business pervades the scene.

Interviewed in his garret-like office, with its sharply-slanting roof beams and the sound of woodcutting coming in at the window, Vanier's huge frame seemed to fill the place. Clad informally in a vast, thick sweater and slacks, he smiled as he recalled how he had given up two careers, one as an officer in the Canadian navy, then another as a popular professor at St. Michael's College, Toronto, to work with the handicapped.

"I came here to visit a friend of mine who was chaplain to about 30 handicapped men," he said. "I bought a house and moved in with two of these retarded people. Somehow I felt very quickly bound to them; I felt I could never leave them or allow either of them ever to be put back in an asylum again. When the chaplain had to leave, I took over care of all 30 of them with only five assistants."

It was during this time, he says, that he discovered both the extraordinary tenderness of the person who is mentally hardicapped and at the same time the terrible anguish they have of not feeling wanted, of having been deceived by people.

"They have an immensity of suffering and at the same time the sense that society is either looking at them with false pity or totally rejecting them," he explained. "People look at them and say: 'How terrible that they are retarded.' They don't see that they have suffered, that they can be a friend, that they too are persons. We tend to accept people only as long as they live as we live or as we want them to live."

At L'Arche, Vanier says, the handicapped must learn to let go of their sadness and accept their disability. The volunteers must learn to drop their cockiness, their trust in whatever it is they can do well, their technique, looks, or "normality."

There is real passion in his voice when he says:

"The handicapped who has accepted it can help us accept our handicap — our fear of what others think, our lust to be richer than we are, better looking than we are, more influential, or what have you. We're more influenced by current fads than by the truth. People need to stop blaming the economy or politicians or their fate and get in touch with their own brokeness. Only then can they be free to become what they are with what they have."

In his view, our whole civilization is built on despising weakness and a struggle for personal or corporate power when what alone counts in the long run is being yourself and having deep, personal relationships with others.

"Society can only be built on relationships, otherwise we have only a flight from anguish — hence all the misery we see around us," he points out. "We're not in touch with ourselves, with the child within each one of us. Jesus said we should become not childish but childlike. There are no barriers between young children no matter what their background. Significantly, there are no barriers between the handicapped of various countries and cultures either."

No one can visit L'Arche without being impressed by the calibre of the young people working as assistants. Loretta Bucher, 26, a university graduate from Moore Park, Toronto, has spent nearly four years here. She currently spends most of her time caring for an aging, Mongoloid woman, Nicole.

Miss Bucher told us:

"The handicapped have taught me how to love and to see myself as Christ sees me. They demand a total transparency so there's nothing to hide behind. You can't pretend to be a great this or that or get away with any power trips. It's a kind of constant calling of yourself back to yourself, your true self."

PAULINE VANIER . . . stays young

We met dozens of volunteers who had a similar experience. There was Mary Louise Evans, professor of psychiatric nursing at the University of British Columbia, who is spending a sabbatical year at L'Arche teaching dance therapy and co-ordinating three of the foyers. Her specialty is integrating the handicapped into regular society. Tricia Reynaud, from Halifax, teaches sewing. She came in 1971 simply to learn French while having room and board provided. However, L'Arche won her and she says she has learned in a remarkable way how to share life with others and to accept people where they are. Her husband, Michael, runs one of the workshops.

John Martin, a young man in his late 20s from Charlottetown, told us he is here working with Vanier because he wants to help set up an "ark" community in Cape Breton Island when he returns to Canada.

The most impressive "volunteer" of all, however, is, Madame Pauline Vanier, Jean's mother. No longer coquettish about her age, she told us:

"I'm quite happy to say that I'm 80."

She could be enjoying the salons of Paris, London, or Ottawa, but, about seven years ago she decided to make her permanent residence in a simple, stone cottage in Trosly-Breuil. It was not in order to be near her son.

"People think I'm here sitting in front of the fire having tea with Jean," she chuckles. "Why, I'm lucky if I see him for half-an-hour once a month."

They Come For a Chat

The real reason was to "stay young," she explained. Oddly enough, she once told Jean she would never come because, like so many, she was afraid of the handicapped. Now that all has changed. Her role at L'Arche, while low-key, is crucial. The handicapped with crises come to see her for a chat or just to sit near her for a while.

Madame Vanier, in turn, keeps a watchful eye upon the young assistants. At the fist sign that things are getting them down — the language problem, the frustrations of living in community — she invites them round for tea or a meal and infuses fresh morale.

Vanier himself is concerned that his travels around the globe to visit his far-flung communities, his frequent retreats and seminars, plus all the counselling and administration at L'Arche, sometimes prevent him from being as close to the handicapped as he would like to be.

That's why this Christmas, he took 20 or 30 of them with him on a holiday. They went to some warmer beach area resort and took walks together and played simple games.

"In a sense, every day for me is a day off," he says laughing. "But we need some time just to relax and have fun together."

Women Serving Men

By WILLIAM JOHNSON

QUEBEC — Women who serve men, that is the subject of Diane Letourneau's documentary, Les Servantes du bon Dieu. In a season when the stage is dominated by feminist statements, the most touching Quebec film is a 90-minute exploration of a congregation of nuns who spend their lives doing menial work for priests.

"I liked priests a lot, I wanted to give myself for the priests," one white-veiled nun says candidly to the camera. Not a touch of self-consciousness, no suspicion of the mean interpretations that will be made by a less innocent audience.

The cameras of Diane Letourneau penetrated into the Mother House of les Petites Soeurs de la Sainte-Famille of Sherbrooke. It is a congregation formed nearly 100 years ago specifically to do the cooking, washing, sewing, ironing, dusting for priests and those studying to be priests. These nuns chose to take on the drudgery to free the priests for the more glorious work of preaching, studying, administering the sacraments.

Though the film was made in 1978 it projects an aura of the past. These, our contemporary sisters, are such anachronisms by current standards. An audience cannot watch without nostalgia the nuns going about their daily work, or listen without some sadness as they answer the questions put by Diane Letourneau. Their name, their age, the number of years they have been in religion, the work they have done and how they view it.

Short and simple annals. The questions rarely probe deeply into individual psychology. "Have you been happy?" Yes, I have always been happy," says nun after nun.

Two scenes remain with me vividly. In one, you see the priests eating in the more ornate dining room while two nuns are having their meal at the kitchen table. A priest picks up a little bell from the tablecloth, rings. The nun comes in to serve the next course. Not a priest glances up, not a word or look of recognition. The nun serves each in turn while they continue their conversations, taking the nuns for granted, not a single thank you.

In another scene you see the priests go in solemn procession to say mass. They wear the ceremonial vestments, alb, stole, maniple and chasuble. The nuns have done all the preparatory work. They washed, starched, ironed the vestments, then laid them out just so, side by side, in neat piles, for each priest. The priests come in, don the vestments, then walk out into the chapel in resplendent procession to concelebrate the mass. Afterwards they return, again in procession, to the sacristy, where they disrobe. The camera slowly passes over the sacristy tables: the vestments are now in heaps, waiting to be taken up by the nuns, washed, ironed and starched again so the priests can go out once more in resplendent procession.

Very Rev. Georges Cabana, retired bishop of Sherbrooke, tells Diane Letourneau how valuable is the work of the nuns. They are, he says, "like the holy women who accompanied Our Lord and the Apostles."

The nuns work for the priests and for each other. There are about 550 of them living in the Mother House, which means a lot of institutional work. "I work in the kitchen making desserts," one nun says. "I'm the one who fattens the sisters." Another works as a cobbler: "I try to help the sisters fulfil themselves by starting right at the bottom." Yet another nun repairs the clocks and watches. She is self-taught, started decades earlier by taking apart a broken clock.

The nuns are aging. No new recruits come now to the convent door. Girls today in Quebec think they have better things to do with their lives than wear themselves out as domestics for the priests. The average age of the nuns is now about 60. About one third of them are ailing. Some very old nuns are led about by younger nuns whose job it is to be their companions. About three times a month a nun dies, and the others lay her out with the efficiency that comes with much practice. Each day, as part of the announcements over the public address system, the nuns pay homage to their sisters who died on that day in previous years. The living and the dead form one community, but those who remain to work are now outnumbered by those whose work has ended.

No replacements are coming along. Still, the nuns remain serene, unworried. "God will provide," they say.

The camera just looks and listens. "I have been happy," the nuns say. Diane Letourneau and her cameras remain on the surface, not trying to probe into each nun's secret. The result is more powerful: you sense that each has submerged her individuality into the whole, has cultivated the archaic satisfactions of the perfect servant.

Sharp Coyote Rise Since Poison Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coyotes have increased dramatically in the Fraser Valley since the British Columbia government banned the use of poison control several years ago, says a retired B.C. fish and wildlife branch predatory control officer.

Coyote hunter Jack Lay of Abbotsford said Langley district municipality has become a haven for the animals because a local firearms control bylaw has made it difficult for shotgun-toting hunters to shoot them.

Lay, founder of the B.C. Trail Hound Association, said the situation in the valley east of Vancouver will get worse.

"Coyotes have started cross-breeding with dogs. What they are producing is a bigger stronger animal. I wouldn't say as smart, but bolder.

"With all this cross-breeding, who's to say he's not going to attack a human. So far he has been happy to go just for sheep and beef, but as the competition gets tougher he'll start taking after dairy herds."

Lay said wildlife trappers and rifle-carrying farmers are no match for the wily predators.

"I've seen coyotes sitting in a field just out of range of whatever a guy is packing, 75 to 100 yards away depending on whether it is a shotgun or rifle. I tell you those coyotes are not dumb."

Paul Blackwell, hound association secretary, said the club has offered to kill the coyotes in Langley but the municipality's firearms bylaw does not allow the use of shotgun buckshot large enough to kill the animals.

The club method is simple.

"We like to find a five- or 10-acre bushlot and spread ourselves maybe 75 yards apart around it," said Lay. "Then one of us goes in with a couple of hounds.

"I guess we will get about 50 coyotes this season. We really can't hope to make a large dent in the population, but we try to help out."

Langley could use their services, he said, but Langley alderman Elford Nundal, a veterinarian, isn't so sure, adding the fish and wildlife branch was responsible for predator control.

"Council passed the firearms bylaw about five years ago because of public demand. People were concerned about livestock, pets and general safety."

AND THAT'S A RECORD FOR BULL!

VERNON (CP) — An 1,800-pound thoroughbred Hereford bull has sold for $28,000, the highest price ever paid for its kind in British Columbia.

The sum was paid during the Pacific Western sale during the weekend in nearby Lavington. A spokesman said the highest sum previously paid for the breed was about $7,000.

Lawyer Offers Mom Aid

VANCOUVER (CP) — An immigration lawyer has offered free legal services to a Malaysian woman whose application to stay with her two Canadian children here was rejected by Immigration Minister Bud Cullen.

John Taylor said Monday he has offered his services because he feels strongly that the children should be able to stay in Canada.

Cullen earlier rejected an application by Yoke Jonasson to stay here with her children Shawn, 6, and Amanda, 3, on grounds that people cannot apply for landed immigrant status from within the country.

"She could leave the children here, but that would be heartless," said Taylor.

He said the woman is not expected to be a liability to the public because she expects maintenance payments from her former husband.

Ms. Jonasson said she has been chatised by a senior immigration official in Ottawa for taking her plight to the media.

The woman said in an interview the officer telephoned her last week and told her she had embarrassed the minister and, as a result, her chances of staying here are negligible.

Taylor said he was surprised the ministry would say the application could not be reviewed because the media was interested in her story.

"I would think the ministry is not fully aware of the facts," he said.

ROYALTY BID RILES UFAWU

VANCOUVER (UPC) — West coast fishermen have angrily rejected a federal fisheries report that recommends they should pay royalties on their catches amounting to an estimated $4 million a year.

Delegates to the annual convention of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union voted unanimously Monday to reject the recommendations contained in a study by economist Sol Sinclair for the federal department of fisheries.

Union president Jack Nichol said the proposal amounted to "double taxation with a vengeance" because fishermen already paid licence fees as well as income tax on their catches.

The report, commissioned in 1976 to examine ways of reducing pressure on existing fish stocks, also recommended introduction of $10 annual licence fees for sports fishermen and commercial licence fees for charter fishing.

"The condition of too many fishermen chasing too few fish has been, and continues to be, the dilemma of the salmon fishery since it became a commercial enterprise in the last century," the study said.

Union business agent Bill Procopation said the proposal follows the pattern of all previous government studies by placing control of the fishing industry in the hands of the big companies: "Every licence limitation program proposed by the ministry has aimed at the same thing."

Liquor Ads on Air?

Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday he plans to meet with representatives of the B.C. Association of Broadcasters this month to discuss the possibility of permitting liquor advertisements to be broadcast.

The minister, however, would not say whether he favors broadcasting of liquor advertisements.

"The No. 1 question, I guess, that I would like answered by the association is: Of what benefit to our society would there be should such advertising be considered at some time? How will this benefit our society?"

Nielsen said he would expect a lot of public opposition to any move to permit the broadcasting of liquor commercials but he wants to be fair to broadcasters. At present, liquor advertisements can appear in print but not on radio and television.

The only commitment the minister would give is that he will listen to both sides of the question of advertising liquor.

Nielsen also denied reports that he doesn't like the neighborhood pub concept. He said he was asked recently what he thinks of the pubs and the reply was taken out of context.

He said he told the reporter that those who expected to see the British neighborhood pub transferred to our society must be disappointed because that has not happened.

Instead, we have a distinctly B.C. neighborhood pub which is neither British nor an American tavern.

Nielsen said the B.C.-style pub has been very successful although it has attracted many complaints — and one of those is that it doesn't resemble the British pub.

He said the neighborhood pub concept is being studied.

Press Talks Resuming

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Joint Council of Newspaper Unions will meet with Pacific Press management Wednesday in a bid to resolve a labor dispute which has closed the Sun and Province newspapers since Nov. 1, union spokesman Phil Needham said Monday night.

Needham said that until now manning issues and procedures in the press and mailing rooms have been a stumbling block to negotiations.

He said the unions now want to resume bargaining without the requirement that any key issue blocking talks be resolved before others are discussed.

DRIVING RANGE: ANOTHER SHIFT

First they would, then they wouldn't and now — perhaps — they will.

That's the story on Saanich's hesitant approach to cutting fees at the new Cedar Hill golf driving range to stimulate better use of the facility.

Ald. Sandy Noel recently suggested the lower rates in off-season months but withdrew the proposal after private operators complained of unfair competition.

But Noel had another change of heart Monday night, telling the parks and recreation committee he still believes the Saanich rates are too high.

Aldermen agreed the matter be left to committee chairman Ald. Geoff Vantreight and parks and recreation director Bill Young.

Canine Curfew Eyed by Saanich

A cur curfew to prevent dogs from roaming the streets after 11 p.m. is one of the proposals to be examined as part of a Saanich crackdown on the health and nuisance problems caused by dogs, including beach and sidewalk pollution and all-night barking.

Officials were asked to investigate the possible curfew and other suggestions after several residents complained to council's bylaw enforcement committee Monday night.

The irate residents spoke of nerve-jangling sleepless nights caused by incessant barking, of dogs fouling lawns and sidewalks, and of young children whose hands are covered with dog dirt when they attempt to build sandcastles on the beach at Gyro Park.

Among the suggestions to be explored by officials is one from Ald. Irene Block that designated "doggie parks" be established in various parts of the municipality where owners could exercise their dogs.

Block, who also produced the idea for the 11 p.m.-to-7 a.m. curfew, suggested it might apply to cats as well as dogs.

But several of her colleagues pooh-pooed the notion as being impracticable and unenforceable.

The staff was asked to review Saanich's dog control bylaw and those of other municipalities, with the aim of producing tougher legislation.

One objective would be to make it easier to prosecute owners who allow their dogs to bark all night.

Some of the residents attending the meeting complained that prosecution is now difficult because corroborative evidence is required from at least two neighbors.

Saanich poundkeeper Robert Holmes suggested Saanich introduce a ticketing system, similar to the issuance of traffic tickets, for several types of offences including permitting dogs to be at large, on the beach without a leash or on the beach at all during the April-to-August period.

This would avoid the time-consuming business of prosecuting under the summary conviction procedure, he noted.

The committee endorsed the proposal, with the recommendation to the chief judge of the provincial court that $15 be set as the standard penalty for a first offence.

No Boondoggle

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford Monday disputed charges by an NDP MLA that the provincial legislature's investigation of the food industry has degenerated into a $3 million boondoggle.

Shelford said the study will be useful and the province is getting value for the money spent to compile it.

Barbara Wallace (NDP-Cowichan-Malahat) said last week that she, Chris D'Arcy (NDP-Rossland-Trail) and Dave Stupich (NDP-Nanaimo) will boycott future out-of-town committee meetings because of ineptitude, overruns and lack of accountability in the study.

The three are the only opposition MLAs on the nine-member legislature committee.

The study was commissioned in April, 1977, and was to have lasted 11 months. Mrs. Wallace said it has taken two years, cost $3 million and there is no end in sight.

Water Mains Too Small

Parts of Oak Bay, including a cluster of seven frame apartment buildings, are protected by water mains of only half the recommended capacity, Fire chief Fred Leeke told council's fire committee Monday.

The committee instructed Leeke and the municipal engineer to prepare a detailed report showing all areas where there are indequate mains with the cost of raising them to recommended standards.

Leeke said Haultain east of Foul Bay has seven apartment blocks with only a four-inch water main which loses efficiency under heavy demand. A long block at Monterey School has only four-inch main despite the desired standard of eight inches.

Legal Action on Trailers

Saanich council's bylaw enforcement committee Monday night instructed municipal solicitor Chris Nation to initiate legal action against a tourist trailer park on Seymour Avenue for alleged zoning infractions.

The committee was told by officials that the Inn-City Victoria Camper Trailer Park, 3420 Seymour, contained occupants of three trailer units who had been there more than two years, and two who had been in residence more than a year.

Nation said a legal case could be made that occupancy of such duration violated the zoning regulations stipulating the site be used for transient accommodation.

The committee also requested a health inspector's report on complaints from Lionel Speller, 3628 Saanich, that he had seen some trailers hooked up not to sewers but to plastic buckets.

Speller produced a string of complaints against the trailer park, including late-night parties "of the long-haired hippie type," the posting of for-sale signs on buses and boats, and allegations that in busy periods the operators have charged campers for parking their units on adjoining municipal property.

Speller said some children living in [illegible] has even attended Tolmie school, although their parents were not taxpayers.

Committee members agreed that correspondence with the owner, Abtar Bains, include a request for information concerning his plans for possible redevelopment of the property.

NIP Gets $332,000 Go-Ahead

Neighborhood Improvement Programs costing about $332,000 were approved by Esquimalt council Monday night.

About $155,000 will be spent in the southern part of the municipality and about $177,000 in northeast Esquimalt.

South Esquimalt projects receiving approval include $6,000 for street lighting in the Wollaston, Macaulay and Constance streets area, $2,000 for a drainage progam in the Foster-Sturdee area, $30,000 for improvements to beach access parks on Grafton and Nelson streets, $25,000 for parks improvements on Lyall, Foster and Head streets, $6,000 for bus shelters and $2,650 for lacrosse box lighting.

A $60,000 two-storey recreation annex in Bullen Park also received approval.

Eight projects were also approved for the northeast area but it was recommended $8,500 for street lighting and a pushbutton stop light in the Lockley and Lampson area be given priority, as well as $10,000 for the existing Tillicum Road sidewalk program.

Other projects include $10,000 for improvement of the skateboard park, $18,000 for 13 bus shelters, $20,000 for improvement of mini parks on Wurtele Place and Lockley Road, and $12,000 for improvement of tot lots and lineal parks in the Lockley, Colville and Lampson street area.

Changes Urged

A delegation representing 44 organizations told cabinet ministers Monday that guidelines for the public inquiry on uranium mining need revision.

The organizations said the inquiry should deal with the basic question of whether or not to mine rather than deal with health and environmental standards for uranium mining.

Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said the decision whether or not to proceed with uranium mining is a responsibility of a government, not of a commission. He also said the purpose of the commission is to provide facts to help the government make its decision.

The three-man inquiry commission is expected to start public hearings in April.

Businesses Face Loss in Iran

MONTREAL (CP) — Having evacuated their employees from strife-torn Iran, three Montreal firms now are wondering how to salvage potential losses of millions of dollars.

Ircobec, Stadler-Hurter Ltd., and Montreal Engineering Co. Ltd. all had large contracts with the former Iranian government, say spokesmen for the companies. Now the companies are nervous over reports that the revolutionary government of Ayatollah Khomeini might not honor debts owed to foreign firms.

Irobec president Jacques Corriveau said Monday his company billed Iran $3.6 million for the technology and design of industrial housing units and has not yet collected a cent.

The company's total $100-million contract, now in limbo, included construction of a factory to manufacture the housing units.

"Last September, a member of our company negotiated a deal in good faith with the Iranian government, but I have had no news since last October," Corriveau said.

"I guess we have to live with what happened. But when the situation has stabilized, I will be eager to discuss the debt owed by the previous government or to do business with the new government."

Montreal Engineering Co. was acting as consulting engineers to Monenco Iran, a company formed with Iranian engineers to design generating stations and power lines.

A. H. Gerrish, overseas vice-president of Montreal Engineering, said the company has a capital value of $1 billion tied up in Iran.

"But for us, it has not been a traumatic experience, only an inconvenience," he said. "The major inconvenience is that our clients are not paying their bills because the banks are on strike."

As far as he knows, the operation of the Iranian power company is being maintained by Iranian colleagues, Gerrish said. "As soon as things have calmed down, we will go back there."

An external affairs spokesman said only 110 Canadians remain in Iran and all non-essential staff has left the Canadian embassy.

The pharmacy was robbed about four weeks ago.

In Colwood, RCMP said the Colwood Dental Clinic, 318 Goldstream, was broken into but there is no report on anything missing.

ZAPU Claims 'Kill'

Prime Minister James Callaghan "have it in their power as no one else does to bring to an an end all this inhuman terrorism."

Military and aviation sources expressed the belief the Air Rhodesia Viscount prop-jet airliner was brought down by at least one Soviet-made heat-seeking missile.

Air Rhodesia said the death list included a family of six New Zealanders, six Belgians traveling together, two British nationals, one Swiss and at least one South African. The others were white Rhodesians except for one black trainee air hostess.

Smith said, "Honest people everywhere will be asking how it is that the Western world can permit this kind of barbarism to continue in Rhodesia. Let me say that I have made it clear so many times to President Carter and Prime Minister Callaghan that they have it in their power as no one else does to bring an end to all this inhuman terrorism."

Last September's attack lead to swift retaliatory raids by Rhodesian forces.

Bakhtiar Arrested

embarrassment of officials of the new government, more than 50 Americans were taken into custody and then released.

Iran state radio said armed vigilantes backed by police cadets arrested Bakhtiar, his former war minister, Gen. Jaafar Shafaqat and the army's ruthless paratroop commander, Maj. Gen. Manouchehr Khosrowbad today and handed them over to Khomeini's committees.

Bakhtiar, the shah's handpicked premier who made a futile, last-ditch attempt to stem the revolution led by Khomeini, was taken blindfolded to Khomeini's headquarters after his arrest, the radio said.

Bakhtiar had not been seen in public since his resignation Sunday and was reported Monday to be under the protection of provisonal government chief Bazargan, an old friend. Bakhtiar had been a National Front member until he was ejected last month for accepting the shah's mandate to become prime minister.

A Khomeini spokesman said he did not know what charges would be brought against Bakhtiar. But Ibrahim Yazdi, a newly-designated deputy prime minister in the provisional government, said when Khomeini forces seized power Sunday that Bakhtiar was "held responsible for everything the army has done," referring to the deaths of hundreds of demonstrators in clashes with troops.

Six generals also were reported to have been arrested, including the commander of the paratroops, Gen. Mauncheh Khrosrowdad.

The new government has indicated that former ministers of the shah and generals put on public "show" Monday will face the courts.

Gen. Nematollah Nassiri — the former head of Savak, Iran's secret police — appeared before questioners on television with his head in bandages, his face bleeding and his hands held behind his back by two civilians.

But the 72-year-old general denied he was to blame for Savak atrocities, saying he had acted on orders from the prime minister, who for most of his time as Savak leader was Amir Abbas Hoveyda.

"There might have been some torture but I know nothing about it because I was not handling those things," Nassiri said. "More junior officers might have done what you say, but I know nothing about it."

At a news conference, Hoveyda likewise denied any involvment in atrocities by Savak. "The Savak had a head and he must respond," Hoveyda said.

Tehran was reported mostly quiet today quiet with some shops opening.

Youths who had ransacked police and army arsenals and stole tens of thousands of rifles and grenades began handing them back to selected mosques in Tehran.

On Monday, the army collapsed and tens of thousands of troops simply abandoned their posts and went to their homes.

However, the former commander of Iran's powerful air force said Monday all the sophisticated weapons and equipment brought from the United States remain in Iran at the disposal of the new Iranian regime.

Gen. Amir Hossein Rabaei, forced to resign hours earlier by victorious rebels, told a news conference: "Nothing at all has been removed. The air force is still well organized."

He had been asked about reports that Iran's U.S.-made F-14 jet combat planes equipped with Phoenix missiles had been flown out of the country, possibly to Saudi Arabia, and that sensitive electonic gear also had been shipped out.

"Everything is still in Shiraz and Isfahan," he said of two air bases.

Burning Memory Even From Fast Peek

ON MONDAY, Feb. 26, Canada will experience its last total solar eclipse of this century.

It's a sight many will never see again.

But the Canadian Association of Optometrists warns persons who try to view this rare event without first properly protecting their eyes may end up with the memory burned into their vision forever.

The sun's rays are so powerful, the association says, that severe damage could result to the eyes of anyone foolhardy enough to view the eclipse directly.

Solar rays burn through the eye tissue. The result is a life sentence of blurred vision. No medical treatment can repair the damage.

The association says there is no foolproof way of observing the eclipse directly. Tinted or opaque glasses are no protection unless the material has an opacity equivalent to number 14-gauge welder's glass. No glance, however brief, is safe. Neither is it safe to screw up the eyes or look through a pinhole.

Children are most at risk. The association suggests parents and teachers should supervise children closely and "stop curiosity or bravado" that might lead them into danger.

The safest way to watch the eclipse is on television. Alternatively persons can make their own projection systems.

A simple method is to take a piece of cardboard and cut a pinhole in the centre. Then, placing the cardboard in the path of the sun's rays, the holder projects the image on to a screen. Observers should watch with their backs to the sun.

The eclipse will begin here at 7:16 a.m., reach its maximum — 98 per cent coverage — at 8:19 a.m. and end at 9:26 a.m.

The last partial eclipse seen in Victoria was on Oct. 12, 1977. The last total eclipse in Canada occurred over Ontario and Quebec on July 10, 1972. There was another total eclipse that intersected near Yellowknife on July 20, 1963.

Victoria hasn't had a total eclipse pass directly over the city since March 25, 1876.

Although there are at least two and as many as five eclipses every year in various parts of the world, Canadians will have to wait until Aug. 21, 2017, to see one again. That will cross over continental U.S. A total eclipse will pass over Canada on April 18, 2024.

Frank Younger, an astrophysicist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich, said the Feb. 26 eclipse will strike at 8:09 a.m. 1,000 miles west of the Oregon coast.

FIVE MINUTES later Astoria will be engulfed in darkness as the moon's umbra or shadow races eastward, Younger says. The shadow will follow an 180-mile-wide path along the Washington-Oregon border into central Idaho and most of Montana. It will enter Canada near Estevan, Saskatchewan, pass over Manitoba, Hudson's Bay and end in Greenland.

Younger says the best places to observe the eclipse all lie east of the Cascades.

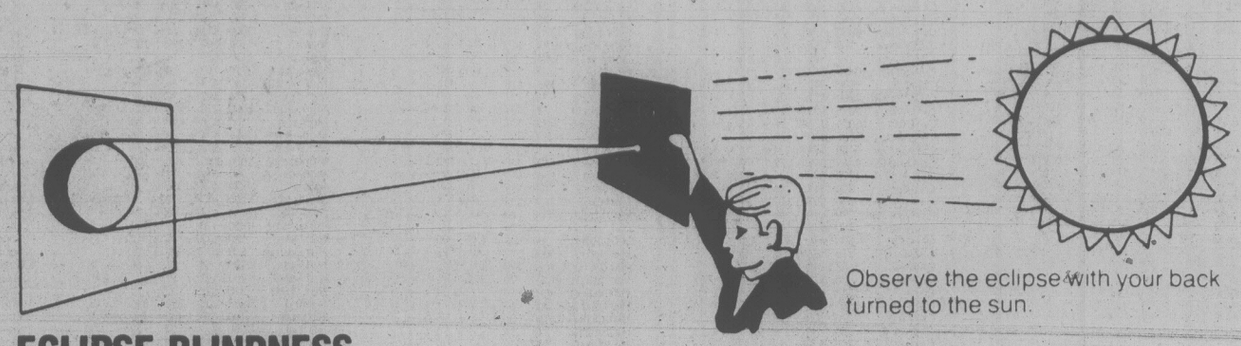
The northern limit of the moon's umbra will be marked by the cities of Olympia, Wash., Kellogg, Idaho, Haver, Man., Broadview, Sask, and Gypsumville, Man.

The centre will pass directly over or near St. Helens and Milton-Freewater in Oregon, Helena and Wolf Point in Montana and Brandon and Riverton in Manitoba.

The southern edge will touch Albany and Baker in Oregon, Dillon and Wibaux in Montana, Rugby in North Dakota and Whitemouth in Manitoba.

Younger says that only where the eclipse is total will the sun's beautiful pearl-white corona be seen.

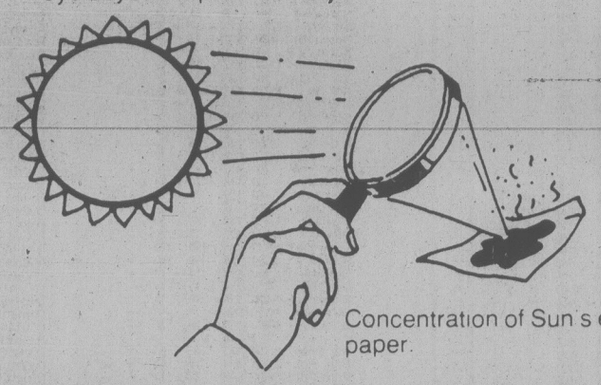
● Make your own projection system. Punch a hole 3-5mm diameter in a card about 30cm square. Hold the card in the sun. A perfect image of the eclipse can be thrown onto any white screen up to 2-6 metres away.



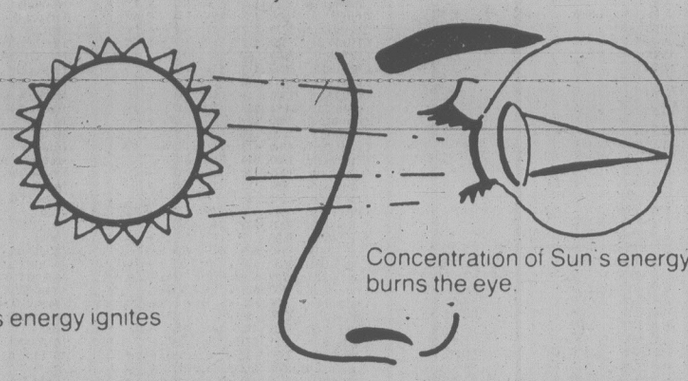
Observe the eclipse with your back turned to the sun.

ECLIPSE-BLINDNESS
Is permanent loss of eye-sight caused by the heat of the sun burning the delicate nerve elements of the eye beyond repair.

The optical parts of your eye act just like a magnifying lens to focus the intense heat of the sun onto the back of your eye.



Concentration of Sun's energy ignites paper.



Concentration of Sun's energy burns the eye.

Aldermen Protest Layoffs In Saanich Parks Branch

Several Saanich aldermen voiced strong criticism Monday night of the recent decision to lay off five parks department employees, some of whom had worked for the municipality for two years.

They argued that such action is indefensible in today's difficult economic climate, and that the municipality must attempt to stabilize its employment situation so workers can enjoy some degree of job security.

Arising out of the parks committee debate was a recommendation that department heads submit early proposals for 1979 capital works projects with a view to rehiring the laid-off five.

The attack on the layoff decision was led by Ald. Irene Block, who suggested it was made to "propitiate" the new chairman of the committee, Ald. Geoff Vantreight.

Terming the action reprehensible, Block said the men concerned were alleged to be temporary, yet they had been on Saanich's payroll for a considerable time.

"When does temporary stop and permanent begin? Why now, when we haven't even put together a budget? How come at the beginning of February we discover there's not enough work for them?"

Block said the layoffs were not humane nor even moral.

She received strong support from Ald. Howard Sturrock, who said he was shocked to discover employees could not be juggled between the public works and parks department to ensure employment on a year-round basis.

"I would like to see us maintain as stable a work force as we can," Sturrock said.

"These are people we are dealing with and to cast them aside because we haven't work for them is not good enough. I don't think we as employers should be treating people in that way."

Parks administrator Frank Andrews told the committee most of the five men had come to the parks department from public works last November.

The department's program of routine maintenance jobs carried them through December and even into January, because the weather was unusually favorable. But now there was no work for them to do, he said.

BLOCK
. . . blames Vantreight

Mayor Mel Couvelier said it was unfair of Block to pin any blame on Vantreight because the layoff decision was made before he assumed his parks chairmanship duties recently.

Ald. John Mika replied that the mayor's comments didn't jibe with a recent newspaper report based on an interview with Vantreight, which gave the impression that the alderman made the decision and Couvelier applauded it with a "bravo."

Mika asked who had taken the action, when and why it was not brought to the committee for approval.

Couvelier said his interpretation of the article didn't match Mika's.

He insisted that he had received an initial report on the proposed layoffs from municipal administrator William Tremayne, and that Vantreight who saw it a few days later concurred with it.

It was not usual for layoffs to be discussed at the committee level, Couvelier added.

Airport Firemen Buck Overtime

Firefighters at Patricia Bay airport are threatening to refuse to work overtime after midnight Friday because they feel they have been putting in too much time beyond normal shifts.

John Hart, regional representative of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, said today the 13 firemen are upset because the overtime is mounting and airport officials are doing nothing about it.

The problem, he said, is that there are more and more special charter flights coming in before the normal nine-hour shift starts at 6 a.m. or after the evening shift ends at midnight.

As a result the employees are being called in early or asked to stay late and they are getting tired. There is also the safety factor, he added, saying there were three passenger planes in the last six months which landed without adequate protection.

The airport switched from having firefighters on the job 24 hours a day to having them work 18 in 1974.

Flower Countdown

Victoria's flower count will be launched Wednesday with nation-wide publicity including a spot on the national morning show on CBC radio.

"They're phoning me at 5:30 a.m. tomorrow for the interview," flower count chairperson Carmela Costigan said.

"It's a little early but it's worth getting up at that time to get the national coverage," she said.

The interview will be aired about 9:30 a.m. Victoria time.

Meanwhile, the flower count will start at 9 a.m. Wednesday with radio station employees taking phone calls in Eaton's window. The one number for the three phones is 381-5315.

Residents are asked to count the flowers blooming on their property and phone in the results. Some prizes are awarded on the basis of a daily draw for those who phone.

Mrs. Costigan said the CBC has promised further national coverage of the event, which ends Feb. 20.

The count is sponsored annually by Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile, 30 business and tourist officials are carrying out a daffodil blitz of Portland this week.

More than 9,000 flowers and seed packets have been handed out on Portland streets since the visit began on Sunday.

The Cliche Express Highballing Again

Question: Which "famed trouper," "renowned emissary" and "proud beauty" is "Canada's Queen of Steel and Steam?"

Answer: No, it's not a sultry stripper wearing metallic lingerie, just the good old Royal Hudson steam locomotive which is about to hit the tracks once more to trumpet another tourist promotion fanfare from the same folks who brought us the smile campaign, Captain Cook's second coming and all the rest.

The florid prose gushes from a Vancouver advertising agency on behalf of Tourism British Columbia.

In a press release the agency's writer (who must have worked as a Hollywood publicity type at some stage in his cliche-ridden career) takes more than three pages to tell us that "The Good Times Express" pulled by the Royal Hudson will begin an extensive tour of B.C. communities, Alberta and Washington state March 26.

The idea, of course, is to invite all concerned to take their holidays in B.C. this year.

But Vancouver Island steam buffs won't be seeing the renowned emissary, proud beauty etc. because the Royal Hudson is apparently too wide and too heavy for the trestles on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway.

Instead, the tourist train will be pulled here by a smaller steam loco, Engine No. 1077. Whatever that is.

Somebody in the Greater Victoria feels a whole lot better after the last Loto Canada draw — a million bucks better.

Identity of the lucky winner isn't known. Loto Canada says only the man has demanded total anonymity and has turned everything over to Esquimalt lawyer Charles Cowan.

TOWN TALK

Cowan, true to the code of the bar, wouldn't say boo today when asked about his instantly rich client. Wouldn't even say if it's a her or a him.

The winner here joins Vancouver postal worker (should that be ex-postal worker?) Brian Nutt who also came up with a $1 million ticket in the same draw.

Victorians who buy a meal at their favorite restaurant on Valentine's Day on Wednesday may be directly helping a deserving medical cause, in which the heart is much more than a symbolic target for Cupid's romantic arrows.

The receipts from meals served during the day will be donated by the Victoria Hotel Association to the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Association president and Imperial Inn manager Vern Ferguson says the 30 members are contributing in various ways.

Some are donating receipts from breakfasts, others from lunches, teas or dinners. And in some cases the revenue from lounges and pubs during certain times of the day will go to the heart foundation.

The foundation's Greater Victoria canvassers begin their Heart Month campaign Wednesday. This year's goal is $200,000.

That health information tape library operated by the health education centres with the assistance of B.C. Tel is providing a fascinating insight into what kind of health matters interest the public.

There are more than 100 taped messages ranging in length from three to six minutes.

Some have drawn more interest than others.

One called Who to Marry got 57 requests; Am I Mature drew 99 callers and What is Hypoglycemia attracted 85 curious callers.

Fifty-four folk called up to listen to a smoker's heartbeat but only five callers were interested enough to listen in on How to be Happy.

Most puzzling rash of calls, and don't ask us why, was for a nifty little tape entitled Bowlegs and Knock-knees. No less than 124 people listened to that one.

The number to call here is 592-1251.

And at 2:30 last Sunday morning, a chilly one at that.

There were six of you — three chaps and three chicks — and you dashed across the street in full view of motorists.

Who said the streaking fad had died?

Before the Judge

A 29-year-old Victorian who harassed city police making an arrest Saturday and punched an off-duty security officer was fined $250 Monday in provincial court.

Judge Fred Green levied the fine on John David Kerr, 1236 Pandora, who pleaded guilty to common assault.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the incident occurred at about 2:20 a.m. in the 900-block Douglas while police were arresting another man. Mulligan said Kerr kept telling the man being arrest to "just give me the word."

A crowd gathered during the commotion, Mulligan stated, and the off-duty security officer, who was trying to keep Kerr away, was punched in the face by Kerr, who then left the scene.

However, Mulligan said, Kerr returned and resumed his threats to intervene in the arrest, at which time Kerr was arrested himself.

Green, who said he was tired of hearing about people interfering with police officers trying to do their jobs, levied the fine and also placed Kerr on six months' probation.

A Victoria firm which failed to file income tax returns for 1973 to 1976, inclusive, and was fined $800 previously was given additional fines totalling $1,400 for the same offence.

Judge Harold Alder fined Circle 6 Holdings Ltd., 1175 Douglas, which changed its pleas on five counts of failing to file income tax returns.

Crown counsel Harold Turnham said the latest counts were for 1972 to 1976, inclusive. He said the company had been warned by mail June 20, 1978, to file returns by July 31, 1978, and still had not done so.

Alder imposed $300 fines for the counts which referred to 1973 to 1976 and $200 for the count referring to 1972.

Professional Litigant Tag Tied to Moore by Lawyer

Richard Harvey Moore was called a professional litigant in B.C. Supreme Court on Monday.

Moore is the 49-year-old Victoria cyclist who last year peddled his case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

He lost by a majority decision of the highest court over the issue of refusing to give his name to a policeman who stopped him after he ran a red light on his bicycle.

On Monday he was in B.C. Supreme Court in response to a motion to stay actions he has brought against two men in connection with a 1974 property dispute at Cobble Hill.

Lawyer Donald E. Taylor of Duncan, representing J.P. Slater, told Mr. Justice Richard Anderson the actions should be stayed until Moore pays $2,100 owing to Slater and Jim Eglinski from a previous judgment.

He said Moore is a professional litigant with a propensity for cases in which he charges members of the RCMP with criminal and civil offences. Taylor referred to a transcript from a previous hearing in which Moore gave the court the impression his main role in life is to seek retribution for alleged injustices involving a real estate holding through criminal and civil courts.

The courts should not be used by such professional litigants, Taylor said, urging the stay to protect the court from further abuse and individuals from unnecessary legal services. One client had already run up a legal bill of $6,000, he said.

Moore should not be allowed to start actions in B.C. Supreme Court without the court's consent, he added.

The matter was adjourned until May.

Man Jailed For Theft Of Stereo

Christopher B. Poole, 20, was sentenced to 10 days in jail Monday when he was found guilty in county court of stealing a $900 stereo set last May.

Judge Peter Millward said Poole needed a stricter sentence than the term of probation he received for a previous theft conviction in Alberta.

Court was told the stereo, property of Kathryn Ann Ricketts, disappeared from her home at 1182 Old Esquimalt the early morning of May 6, after a party where Poole was the only person left in the livingroom — with the stereo playing — when Ricketts went upstairs to bed.

Police found the receiver and two speakers in an apartment which Poole had arranged to rent at 6-340 Linden, where there were articles of personal property belonging to Poole.

Walter Ashworth, who helped Poole move furniture into the Linden suite, said he did not see a stereo there. He said Poole decided not to rent the suite and left the furnishings there with the door unlocked and the key on a kitchen counter before taking another apartment. Police arrested him at 33-1224 Balmoral three days later.

Defence counsel Gordon Macdonald asked for acquittal because it was only supposition that the accused took the stereo, and pointed out that others had access to it and to the Linden apartment.

Millward said in the absence of hard evidence it would be pure speculation to entertain who committed the theft, other than Poole.

Before sentence was passed, Macdonald said consideration should be given to the fact that it was a spontaneous, not well-thought-out offence with drinking involved.

'Disgraceful' RCMP Pensions Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP members who put in years of loyal service at a stress-filled, hazardous job are rewarded with disgraceful pensions when they retire, Conservative MP Erik Nielsen told the Commons Monday.

He pleaded with the government to improve RCMP pensions in order to attract highly-qualified recruits and maintain the standards of the national police force.

What he called inequities in the RCMP pension plan drive most members out before they have served 25 years so they can get a better job while they are still young.

The bill replaces automatic cost-of-increases paid since 1974 with ad hoc increases. Affected will be 157,000 former public servants, including 3,500 retired RCMP members.

The bill, supported by all parties in the Commons, is expected to get second reading — approval in principle — Wednesday and to be sent to a Commons committee for further study.

Conservative defence critic Allan McKinnon said provisions of the bill would be unfair to service men and blasted the government for lumping military and public service pensions.

"The life that is led by civil servants in their normal positions in Canada is not exactly the same as that led by service people," McKinnon said.

Nielsen urged the government to put RCMP pensions in a separate category from regular public service pensions because the jobs are so different.

RCMP pensions should take into account the stress of police work, which he said was responsible for a shorter life expectancy and high rates of alcoholism, marriage failure and suicide among policemen.

The government should recognize that a good policeman requires the stamina of youth. Some are simply burned out after 20 years on the job and it would be beneficial for them and for the force for them to retire then.

But an officer who retires after 25 years' service gets only 41 per cent of his salary. One who retires with less than 20 years' service only gets his pension plan contributions back.

The bill would gradually raise to 60 from 55 the age at which retired public servants can receive cost-of-living increases.

Ice Station's Journey Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — A floating Soviet ice station has just completed a 600-mile drift around the North Pole after nearly six years, the Soviet news agency Novosti reported Monday.

Scientists aboard the ice floe, North Pole 22, which nearly melted in summer, drifted in a 300-mile radius, finishing about 200 miles northeast of Point Barrow, Alaska, in the Chukchi Sea.

The station is one of a series first set up about 25 years ago to study Arctic weather conditions, air and water circulation, the magnetic field and ocean biology.

The U.S. has also had ice stations in the area and Canada plans to set one up later this year.

"What's remarkable is that the island is still intact and did not break up in one season," defence department spokesman said here.

But the floe began melting quickly when it moved southward in summer, causing flooding and nearly damaging research equipment, said Aleksei Treshnikov, director of the Soviet Arctic and Antarctic Research Institute.

"Radio masts and electric line poles started falling and the houses and tents found themselves on high pedestrals," he said.

The drifting island, which has been home to six teams of Soviet explorers since the station was set up in September, 1973, has not been a stranger in Canadian waters.

Defence Minister Barney Danson flew over the floe during a recent Arctic patrol and dropped off a number of Canadian flags and a beer mug as a welcome gesture.

Several Canadian and American camera crews have also visited the station.

Collier To Leave Naval Post

HALIFAX (CP) — Vice-Admiral Andrew Collier announced Monday he is leaving his post as commander of Maritime Command, and will be replaced by Admiral John Allan, a native of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Collier, 55, had been chief of Maritime Command for two years, after assuming command June 27, 1977.

Admiral Allan joined the Canadian navy in 1946, and was promoted to rear-admiral in 1977. He will be promoted to vice-admiral on arrival here this summer.

Admiral Collier's plans for after he leaves Halifax were not announced.

VANCOUVER TOPS STATS IN VIOLENCE

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver has the highest violent crime rate in Canada for a city its size, Statistics Canada figures show.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported last week that Edmonton had the highest number of violent crimes per 100,000 population in cities with more than 250,000 residents.

In fact, Edmonton has the second highest rate.

Vancouver's rate is 1,240.2, which is more than double the national average of 582.2.

60 DAYS FOR GUARD IN PICKET INCIDENT

MONTREAL (CP) — Edgar Lajeunesse, a security guard convicted of criminal negligence last month for injuring a striker by driving through a picket line, was sentenced Monday to 60 days in prison to be served on 30 consecutive weekends.

The offence carried a maximum 10-year jail term, but Superior Court Justice Benjamin Greenberg said a lengthy prison sentence would expose Lajeunesse to too many criminal elements.

Testimony during the 19-day trial showed the guard drove through a picket line during a three-day strike by 550 employees of Gaz Metropolitan Inc. last March.

Henri Barnabe, one of the strikers in the line, was thrown onto the car's hood and then onto the ground and suffered back injuries. Lajeunesse was starting his first day of work for Unic Co. security services at the time of the incident.

Wholesale Index Kibosh Called Pre-Election Ploy

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic MP accused the government Monday of deliberately cancelling publication of its wholesale price index a few months before the election to mask the impact of inflation.

David Orlikow of Winnipeg said a decision to cancel the general wholesale price index as part of a budget restraint program at Statistics Canada was, in fact, an attempt to hide cost-of-living changes from the public.

However, the Statistics Canada official who recommended the index be eliminated said it was outdated, inaccurate and of little more than sentimental value.

He said the index was rarely used in serious economic analysis and had long since been replaced by detailed industry selling price indices.

"When we were asked to recommend spending cuts, it was obvious that this obsolete index had to be an early candidate," the spokesman said.

"I know a lot of people were shocked and felt it was a good indicator of what prices will be when good reach the retail stage, but it just wasn't an accurate forecast," he said.

"I can assure people it was not a great sacrifice in terms of serious economic analysis."

The latest and final publication of the index was last week. Figures released at that time showed wholesale prices had gone up by 12.5 per cent from the 12 months ending Dec. 31.

Calling it one of the leading indicators of price movements in the economy, Orlikow demanded that the index be reinstated immediately.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien said he is confident the public is getting complete information about inflation — even when it makes life difficult for him as finance minister.

"We aren't trying to hide anything," he told Orlikow.

Most Canadians rarely see the wholesale price index which Statistics Canada published for 40 years every month ending last December.

OFF-SEASON ACTIVITIES QUESTIONED

CHRISTENSEN BREAKS COLLARBONE

Should Pro Athletes Stay In Cocoon?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Can major league sports franchises clamp down on dangerous off-season activities by valuable players?

The thought is prompted by two accidents in the last two weeks, one fortunately minor, the other with potential devastating results.

On Feb. 6, tight end Don Hasselbeck of New England Patriots was sideswiped by a mail truck shortly after embarking on a 1,300-mile bicycle trip to Florida.

The six-foot-six Hasselbeck was examined at hospital and released, a little stiff but able to continue.

On Sunday, on a similar bicycle expedition, the Philadelphia Phillies Larry Christenson, one of the National League's top young pitchers, fell from his bike and broke his right collarbone.

Christenson is a right-handed pitcher and there is the chance the injury could limit or end his career.

The bicycle trips were made for a good cause — to raise money for muscular dystrophy.

The motive is fine, but wouldn't a speaking engagement, a telethon, an equipment auction accomplish the same purpose?

Can teams now paying millions of dollars for athletic talent afford to have players participating in risky ventures during the off-season?

Other cases come to mind.

Jim Lonborg helped pitch Boston Red Sox to the American League pennant in 1967 and won the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher. He went skiing in the off-season and damaged a knee. It took him five years to regain a semblance of his 1967 form.

Mike Vail, a young outfielder for New York Mets set a record for a rookie hitting streak. He was an outfielder of great promise. In fact, the Mets were prompted to trade Rusty Staub because of Vail. But Vail dislocated his ankle playing basketball in the off-season and never lived up to that rookie potential.

Danny Fisella, a San Diego Padres pitcher, was killed in a dune buggy.

And who ever will forget the death of Roberto Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder later enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame? He died in a plane crash while taking supplies to earthquake victims in Nicaragua.

And there have been others.

Paul Owens, the Phillies personnel director, admitted that he wasn't sure how to look at it.

"They (the bicyclists) are doing it for a good cause," Owens said. "We felt they had good protection. They don't ride all the time. Police escort them along the way. We checked it out pretty thoroughly.

"Hell, they first wanted to jog across country and we turned that down. It could kill their feet. But bicycling we found out is good conditioning. Christenson did it last year and he said he never felt better."

Owens said some clubs did ban certain things, such as skiing, kite flying, parachuting, flying planes, motorcycles and basketball.

"But if you put everything in they'll be afraid to leave their rooms," he said.

Owens did say that most clubs took out insurance policies on players with multi-million dollar contracts with insurance companies such as Lloyds of London. He also disclosed that most top players have guaranteed contracts, so that if they get hurt in the off-season the club has to pay off the contract.

He used Pete Rose's four-year, $3.2-million pact as an example.

"It's a matter of common sense," Owens said. "As you can imagine, we can't cover everything. And you hate to stop good causes. "And a lot of their activities are good conditioners.

"The bicycling helped Christenson's congenital back condition. And we're proud that they want to help out. But they have to use discretion."

No Holds Barred; No Excuses Either

The weekend in review: And o-o-o-h! What a clobbering Team NHL took in hockey's Series of the Century. Maybe a better phrase would be War of Attrition! At any rate, the Russians won it with no holds barred and deserved to. And what a skating exhibition the Soviet national team put on in those weekend battles against Team NHL. Did someone say battles? After the middle period Saturday it was all over, although nobody really wanted to admit it. There was always the hope . . . and that seems to be part of the continuing story. It's we who are doing most of the hoping now; some maybe hoping they'll stay away now that they've whipped the cream off the top. But not really. There's always next year and maybe our turn again.

One had to feel a trifle sorry for the commentators such as Bobby Orr. A star in his own right, he was as flabbergasted as anyone at the power and resiliency of the Soviet team. He kept reiterating that Team NHL had to take the body to the visitors; that would slow them down and earn respect. Well, maybe it did for a time. But the Russians revelled in the heavy going, took everything the NHL bombers had to offer, shrugged it off, came back for more, probably learned a few tricks themselves and, now that they know the rules, will be taking the body to other teams, more especially the NHL, in future series. Maybe they shouldn't have been shown how.

No, this one was played NHL style; everything was hunky-dory after the first-game win; the refereeing was lenient and the North American way, to say the least; the Soviets had a good argument in that goal-mouth incident in which Trottier was holding the goalkeeper's stick before he got pushed and then slugged back; the NHL got the best of the penalty call and, even though displaying one of their testy "we'll go home" moods, the Russians managed to keep their cool and were flying even faster at the end.

Capsule comments, sure. What else? Everybody probably has a different view of what happened and why. But to the credit of the NHL players, they admitted they were second best. What else could they say?

Maybe the Russians skate different, they appear to float, someone suggested. They sure do, is the answer, and faster and longer and all game too.

Frankly, Sunday's display was a remarkable exhibition of skating and if it had been Team NHL that put it on, headlines would be singing the praises for weeks to come.

Not any more or not for the time being at least. And perhaps Serge Savard of the Montreal Canadiens made a good point when he said:

"This will improve the game. Look, let's be honest. The owners in the league will probably realize they took the wrong directions in the last five or 10 years.

"We've been developing goons in the last 10 years instead of hockey players and this came out today. Look, the Flyers won the cup two years in a row and we all know how they won. Today, all the kids in the junior leagues have to wear helmets and facemasks, and they can't give a good check anymore; they have to come in with the stick up."

Savard threw a verbal slapshot at the American TV networks and how they hyped hockey telecasts in previous years by "showing fights every time they advertised a game."

So the NHL will go back to its business; the Russians will go back to theirs, singing that song "we're No. 1".

Just as they are in other sports.

And, around the time that all this was going on, there was an interview taking place on another channel in which it was suggested that if the United States — not Canada, this time — didn't get off its collective butt and get an all-star U.S. college sophomore basketball team picked and on the road to Europe and way points this summer and next, the U.S. might be lucky to finish third in the Olympic Games behind Russia and Yugoslavia.

Which is sacrilege of another sort in another sport, just as Canada has definitely given way in hockey.

The expert — I can't recall his name — suggested that the Russians would probably rank as No. 1 for reasons similar to those which have elevated them to that position in hockey.

They work at it — the fundamentals and the physical conditioning that is needed to produce champions. We take too much for granted.

But anyway, we got one left. The redshirts haven't taken up lacrosse — well, not yet.

IT'S A GOAL for Rick Trotter (17) of Ontario during opening-day hockey event at Canada Winter Games at Brandon Man. Ontario club scored 6-4 victory over Prince Edward Island. (Games story on page 15)

Leafs Hit Even Mark

CHICAGO (AP) — Toronto Maple Leafs are on the move.

They've finally reached the .500 mark, and coach Roger Neilson is looking ahead to better things during the second half of the National Hockey League season.

"We've been below .500, but we haven't lost that many games lately," Neilson said Monday night after the Maple Leafs skated to a 5-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks. "If we can put together some victories, it will vault us into a better position."

Monday's victory already has moved the Leafs into a better position. Toronto, 5-3-4 in it last 12 games and 22-22-10 on the season, moved past Buffalo Sabres into second place in the NHL's Adams Division with 54 points as regular-season play resumed following the week-long break for the Challenge Cup series with the Soviet Union.

Buffalo and the rest of the NHL were idle Monday night. The Toronto-Chicago game was a makeup match after a heavy snowstorm forced a postponement Jan. 14.

"We've been struggling a little bit, but this was a good win for us on the road," Neilson said of his team's first victory on the road since Jan. 20 at Los Angeles. "Everyone was checking and working. The guys showed a lot of drive during workouts last week."

Larry McDonald scored one goal and assisted on two others to key the Leafs' first win over Chicago in three tries this season. His assists came on goals by Dave Williams and Dan Maloney.

BRAVO, CHAMPIONS!

MOSCOW (AP) — "Bravo, Champions"

That's how the official Soviet news agency Tass headlined its first substantive dispatch Monday on the Soviet Union's Challenge Cup victory over the National Hockey League all-stars.

The Soviet Union clinched the tournament with a 6-0 win Sunday night in New York to take the three-game series 2-1.

Tass, in a New York dispatch, quoted Soviet coach Viktor Tikhonov as saying the outcome amounted to vindicating the progressive Soviet syle of hockey.

"In the contest of two styles of hockey — the fast, combinational Soviet style and the tough, sometimes cruel North American one — victory went to our progressive sytle," he said.

Tikhonov said he and the other Soviet coaches "asked the players to pay most attention to controlling the puck."

'Result of Isolation'

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Hockey League's weekend losses to the Soviet Union's select team are the natural result of its isolation from international competition, says Boris Mayorov, coach of the Soviet Union's second select team.

In an interview, Mayorov, a Soviet star in the 1960s, said that despite their two-games-to-one loss at Madison Square Gardens in New York City, the NHL all-star team "looked like a classy European team with very high standards of technique."

"It is to be hoped that after these games the leaders of professional ice hockey will draw correct conclusions and revise their attitude to participation in the world tournaments," he said.

Wheat Kings Visit Stirs Fans Interest

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

There once was a time when the Edmonton Oil Kings' name was the appealing one in junior hockey.

That was back in the 1950s when Norm Ullman, Billy McNeill, Jerry Melnyk, Johnny Bucyk, Len Lunde and others helped establish Edmonton as the western powerhouse.

This being 1979, however, Brandon Wheat Kings are pulling the crowds into Western Hockey League rinks.

As the quirk of scheduling would have it, this is the week royalty — both Kings — come into Memorial Arena for the one and only visit. Edmonton plays the Victoria Cougars on Wednesday and Brandon, the team the fans seem to be waiting for, on Saturday.

The hard-core fans won't neglect Oil Kings but the great interest is with the Wheat Kings, the Central Division leaders who have lost only three of their 51 games. The demand for tickets for Saturday's game has been intense but they won't go on sale until Wednesday evening. The tickets will be up for grabs once the Edmonton-Victoria game starts.

"We (the Arena) turned down requests for tickets to the Brandon game more than a month ago," said Arena assistant manager John Bate, in explaining the absence of an extended advance sale. "Once we did that, it would have been unfair to start an advance sale. It wouldn't have been fair to the early askers who were told that tickets won't go on sale until Feb. 14.

"In other words, we made out bed and, right or wrong, we have to lie in it."

Among the many early requests, both to the Arena and to the Cougars' office, are many from professional scouts.

"I think we can call a convention meeting for scouts," said Victoria coach Jack Shupe. "From all indications, they'll all be here as well as in Portland and New Westminster.

"They've seen the Wheat Kings play at home. Now they want to see what Brandon can do on the road, and against our (Western) division."

The WHL scheduled the Eastern Division teams to play only two games, one at home and one away, against the West. Central and Western teams have a 2-and-2 schedule.

Brandon, heading for the Coast, attracted a record 7,266 fans for two weekend games in Billings. The Central Division leaders came away with a 4-4 draw and a 5-4 victory, dealing Brandon only its third loss. Wheat Kings open their West Coast tour by meeting the Winter Hawks in Portland Wednesday and then play New Westminster on Thursday.

Unbeaten in their five games this month after a disappointing January, Cougars have learned they will be without rookie defenceman Tony Feltrin for about six weeks. Feltrin suffered a broken wrist bone last Friday.

"At least six weeks," said club doctor Dan Buie. "It's the same injury that Rick LaPointe (now with Philadelphia Flyers) suffered when he was with the Cougars."

Hans, Ron and Philip Selected as Finalists

Gymnast Philip Delesalle, international rugby star Hans de Goede and lacrosse standout Ron MacNeil are finalists for the male athlete-of-the-year award to be presented at the 12th annual Greater Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner at the Empress Hotel, March 12.

It is the third appearance at the head table for Delesalle, who was selected as British Columbia's top athlete for 1978 last weekend. He won the award in 1977.

Delesalle scored a perfect 10 in the pommel horse competition at the Pacific Rim Invitational meet in Vancouver last spring and went on to win the aggregate title. He also collected aggregate honors in an international meet against the United States and China in Edmonton.

In addition, the versatile gymnast captured two gold medals at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton — one as the individual over-all winner and the other as a member of the winning Canadian team.

It is the first appearance for both de Goede and MacNeil.

De Goede, a 25-year-old member of the provincial champion James Bay Athletic Association side, joined prestigious Cardiff Rugby Club in August and earned a place at lock on a forward line that includes two English and three Welsh internationals.

De Goede has played on five B.C.-champion teams with James Bay, has been a member of the national side since 1974 and was invited to play for the World team in the Cardiff Centenniary match in 1976.

MacNeil, captain of Western Lacrosse Association champion Victoria Shamrocks, enjoyed his best season last year since joining the Irish in 1974. He finished third in the league scoring race with 67 goals and 66 assists in 22 games while taking only 20 minutes in penalties.

The big forward is a leading candidate for all-star honors when the WLA holds its 1978 awards banquet later this week in New Westminster.

Nominated earlier for female athlete-of-the-year laurels were tennis play Wendy Barlow, softball pitcher Rosemary Fuller and track star Debbie Campbell.

Only a few tickets are left for the dinner and may be obtained by telephoning ticket chairman Doug Day at 477-1655.

Sangster Wins

Sangster captured the Victoria Times Trophy and the 52nd annual Victoria and District elementary school swim meet championship at the weekend at Crystal Pool.

Sangster had 333 points while Hillcrest was runner-up at 261 and Saanichton/Mt Newton third at 244.

Glenlyon/St. Margaret's captured the Victoria Amateur Swim Club Gala Trophy for the private school with the most points and Hillcrest won R.W. Hibberson trophies for both girls and boys relay victories.

Sangster also won the Archie McKinnon Trophy for novices with 294 points. St. Michael's/Norfolk House came a close second with 292 and Saanichton/Mt. Newton was third at 271.

Sign, or Else

CHICAGO (AP) — Major league umpires have been told by top baseball officials that unless they have signed their 1979 contracts they will be barred from spring training and may be replaced.

The Chicago Sun-Times says that all 52 major league umpires have received identical letters from American League president Lee MacPhail and National League president Charles Feeney.

According to the newspaper, the two league presidents — with the support of baseball's 26 franchise owners — advised umpires if they failed to sign, "... We may be forced to engage another umpire for 1979."

Though no deadline was stipulated in the letters, the opening of spring training is set for March 7. In past years, however, senior umpires generally did not report until about March 20.

"Typical" is what Ron Luciano, president of the Association of the Major League Umpires called the maneuver, who said baseball's owners were out to break the umpires' union.

Another NL umpire, Bruce Froemming of Brown Deer, Wis., said the umpires' $52 per day, which will be raised to $53 for next season, is inadequate.

Vargo predicted that unless the owners "correct this injustice" none of the umpires would sign their individual contracts.

England Ahead

SYDNEY (Reuter) — England captain Mike Brearley gambled on his spinners taking wickets with a new ball today — and they steered the team towards a winning position over Australia after three days play in the final cricket test. England leads 1-1 in the series.

When play ended, Australia stood at 70 for five in their second innings — still 40 runs behind the England first-innings lead.

Brearley turned to off spin when, with the innings only six overs old, Mike Hendrick strained a shoulder and left the field.

Emburey and Miller, bowling non-stop for the rest of the day, soon induced a batting collapse.

CURLING

Four Brier Berths Set; Pierce, Martin On Track

Four men's provincial curling championships were determined on the weekend, a fifth is to be decided today, a sixth Wednesday and a former national champion from Victoria may be on her way to another Canadian final.

In addition to Canadian champion Ed Lukowich's defeat at the hands of Paul Devlin of Edmonton in Alberta, men's titles were declared in Ontario, Northern Ontario and Nova Scotia.

The B.C. championship is on the line today in Cranbrook and the Manitoba men's tournament will wind up Wednesday. All the winners go to the Canadian championship in Ottawa, March 4-10.

Closer to home, Victoria's Flora Martin, Canadian women's senior champion in 1974 and 1975, has taken two big steps towards another provincial championship and a Victoria postal rink has gained a berth in a national final.

In Cranbrook, Monday, Glen Pierce of Vancouver defeated Dave Simpson of Vernon 5-2 in the first game of the best-of-three series that will determine B.C.'s representative in the Brier.

Pierce broke a 1-1 tie when he stole a point in the sixth end after Simpson missed a takeout and Pierce then went up 4-1 in the seventh.

In that end, Simpson missed a double take-out with his first rock and Pierce raised a guard with his second shot to remain lying two. Simpson's draw attempt went through the house. Second and third game, if necessary, will be played today.

In Prince Rupert, Martin scored impressive victories to share the lead in the B.C. senior women's playdowns. The Victoria Club skip took only six ends to down Connie Barker of North Vancouver 12-1 and was an easy 13-3 winner over Kay Gable of Prince George in the opening draw.

Abbie Bridgeman of Vernon kept pace with an opening-round 8-7 win over Barker and a 10-5 triumph over Flo Makepeace of New Westminster.

In Kelowna, the AL Wright rink of Victoria Club has won a trip to St. John, N.B., and the national postal championship.

Wright (Mike Zabrick, Gary Lind and Bruce Doak) defeated Bart Longmore, the "A" side winner of the championship round, twice, 10-4 and 8-4, in the all-Victoria final of the modified double-knockout event.

In Calgary, Devlin paid a price to pursue his life-long ambition of competing in the Canadian championship, and now that he is going as Alberta's representative he considers the sacrifice worth-while.

Devlin, who defeated Lukowich 7-4 to get into the final for the first time, has no job to come back to.

"My employer told me during the playdowns I was going to have to decide between my work or curling," said Devlin, 32, who was selling cars.

"I figured I wasn't going to be in the car business all my life, so I quit the job."

His rink includes third John Hunter, second Pat Ryan and lead Derek Devlin.

In St. Thomas., Ont., Bob Fedosa, a 33-year-old senior public school teacher from Bramalea, won the Ontario championship with eight wins and one loss in the round-robin tournament.

Other members of his rink are Bob Turcotte, Craig Garratt and Doug Morrison.

In Fort Frances, Ont., Larry Pineau of Thunder Bay defeated Al Hackner, also of Thunder Bay, 9-1 in a playoff to win the Northern Ontario bonspiel. Pineau, 37, had never before made it to the zone level.

In Bridgewater, N.S., defending champion Alan Darragh's rink from the Dartmouth Curling Club defeated clubmate Dick Boyce 7-6 to win the Nova Scotia title.

In Yorkton, defending Canadian police champion Norm Gilbertson of Saskatoon has won the Saskatchewan police championship for the third year in a row.

Trudeau Opens Games

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Three speedskating titles are on the line today in the first full day of operations at the fourth Canada Winter Games after they were officially opened by Prime Minister Trudeau Monday night.

The speedskaters, who wrap up their competition at the sportsplex oval in the first four days, started their program with the men's and women's 500 metres and the women's 1,500 metres as six other disciplines also saw action.

Horse-drawn coaches brought the prime minister and representatives of the competing provinces and territories into the Keystone Arena for the opening ceremony at which they were entertained by singers and dancers from various parts of Manitoba.

Drew Mitchell, a badminton player from Winnipeg, and Renald Piche, a hockey player from St. Boniface, Man., took the games oath in Canada's two official languages on behalf of the 2,148 athletes and the torch-bearer was Tammy Lynne Josephson, a 13-year-old Brandon figure skater who was the youngest competitor at the 1975 games in Lethbridge, Alta.

They jumped the gun in the badminton and hockey tournaments.

A few hours before pledging himself to take part in the games in a true spirit of sportsmanship, Mitchell and his Manitoba team-mates went down to an 8-1 defeat at the hands of Ontario in the first round of round-robin competition.

Ontario's Bramalea Blues also won their first game of preliminary hockey competition, defeating Prince Edward Island 6-4 while Saskatchewan outlasted Newfoundland 4-3 in overtime.

In other first-round badminton matchups, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec had 9-0 sweeps over Newfoundland, the Yukon and Nova Scotia while P.E.I. downed the Northwest Territories and Alberta defeated new Brunswick by 7-2 scores.

At Agassiz, 140 kilometres northeast of Brandon, the alpine skiing program began with the first two runs of the women's slalom.

The second week of the games features competition in basketball, curling, fencing, figure skating, gymnastics, judo, racquetball, cross-country skiing, weightlifting and wrestling.

New foundland's burly hockey team surprised Saskatchewan by taking a 2-0 lead and the favored Saskatoon quakers needed two power-play goals late in the third period to get back into the game.

Quakers coach Ron Atchison, who had expected a "small, scrawny team" like the Newfoundland entry he played against in the 1971 games, came away convinced that there are no pushovers in this year's tournament.

"Anybody on a given day can win," he said.

Steve Burch's two goals paced Ontario to its victory over P.E.I. as the Islanders fell behind 4-1 in the first period but picked up steam as the game progressed.

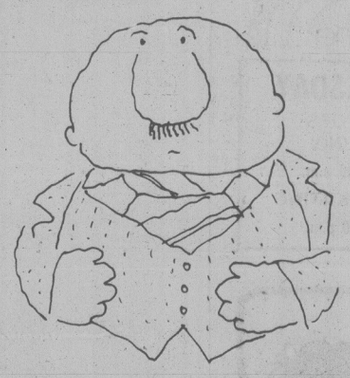
If you've bought an RRSP, maybe you've made a mistake.

Did you purchase your RRSP at the usual place just because it was convenient?



Many people consider buying RRSP's a matter of convenience. But when you invest only once a year in an RRSP, and the outcome of that decision will affect your entire retirement, you owe it to yourself to seek out all the options.

Royal Trust offers six RRSP options. For example, your guaranteed interest returns can vary like a savings account or be guaranteed for 5 years. You can invest in a bond fund, or a mortgage fund. You can participate in our Canadian common stock fund. Or, you can have a self-directed plan.

The choice is yours.

Did you put this year's RRSP deposit in your own name again, rather than your spouse's?

Under current regulations, you and your spouse will each be allowed up to $1000 of retirement income after age 65 without paying any tax. You can now make all or part of your allowable annual RRSP contribution in your spouse's name and still claim it as a deduction from your taxable income. That way you get the tax deduction now, and you both may claim a $1000 deduction later.

Spousal RRSP's make a lot of sense.

Did you pay a commission to buy your RRSP?

The amount of dollars available for your retirement is dependent on how much is actually invested each year. If you pay a commission, less goes into your account. That doesn't have to be, and it doesn't happen when you buy a Royal Trust RRSP.

Did you make a big mistake?

If you haven't made this year's contribution, you can still avoid these potential mistakes. Talk things over with Royal Trust first.

If you have already made this year's contribution, we can still help. Most RRSP's can be easily transferred without affecting your annual allowable contribution or income tax status. If you agree that a Royal Trust RRSP is better for you than your present plan, we'll have it quickly switched over.

And don't miss depositing for the 1978 tax year because of a lack of funds. Talk to us about a Tax Saver Loan. Your tax savings alone could more than offset your interest costs.

You'll make no mistake by picking up your free RRSP booklet from your nearest Royal Trust branch.

Ash, Trophy Squad Earn Tenpin Titles

Big Mike Ash and the P.J. Trophies quintet picked an excellent time to produce a bumper harvest of strikes and spares.

Both collected cash and titles in two sections of the annual Victoria men's Tenpin Association tournament, a two-week-end event that was concluded Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Mike made it to the top in singles competition and the P.J. crew rolled to the front in scrambles for team laurels.

Ash sandwiched the high single game of the tourney — 268 — between a starting game of 235 and a finishing effort of 170 to capture scratch singles honors with a sizzling, 673 series.

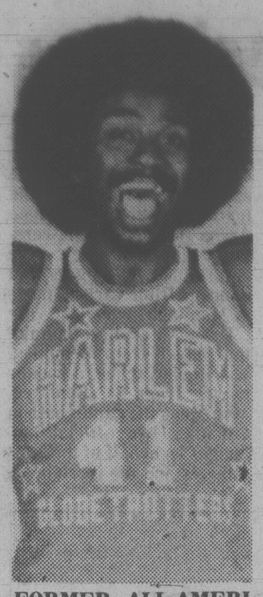
He also collected the handicap crown by combining the 673 with a 78 handicap total for for a count of 751.

P.J. Trophies earned both the scratch and handicap team titles, rolling a scratch total of 2,931 and adding a 255 allowance for a handicap score of 3,186.

Al Hill sparked the victory with a 611 series that included single games of 221 and 232. Other members of the team, with scratch scores, are Gary Day (598), Gary Colby (585), Joe Frolich (572) and Fred Rentz (565).

Len Hayley (180-196-173 — 549) and Bob Willis (226-222-220 — 668) claimed the scratch doubles crown with 1,217 while Jurgen Stassel (178-176-183 — 537) and Ted Stidston (180-211-186 — 577) nailed down handicap laurels with 1,114-219 — 1,333.

Lee Doney won the coveted scratch all-events title with a nine-game total of 1,801 and Don Moore took the handicap all-events prize with 1,702-297 — 1,999.



FORMER ALL-AMERICAN with University of Houston, Sweet Lou Dunbar is scheduled for action with Harlem Globetrotters Thursday at Memorial Arena. Rated one of top entertainers with touring basketball club, Dunbar combines basketball skill with usual Trotter comic capers. Show, which includes variety act, start at 7:30 p.m.

Outsiders Rattle Spurs

LONDON (Reuter) — Second-Division club Wrexham, 100-to-1 outsider for the English Football Association Cup, led First-Division rivals Tottenham Hotspur twice and finally tied 3-3 in a fourth-round Cup thriller Monday night.

Wrexham was late arriving because its coach-driver could not find the way to the Tottenham ground, but when the game got under way, the visitors quickly showed they knew the path to goal.

Bobby Shinton gave them the lead in the 10th minute, and after an own goal by John Roberts and another score by Glen Hoddle had put Tottenham in front, they hit back lustily. John Lyons scored twice — once from the penalty spot — and Wrexham was ahead again after 57 minutes.

Only eight minutes from the end, Tottenham earned a replay on Wednesday when substitute Chris Jones headed an equalizer from a free kick.

Manchester United, taken on almost single-handed by Fulham goalkeeper Gerry Peyton, finally beat him in the 65th minute with a goal from Jimmy Greenhoff to defeat the London club 1-0 in a fourth-round replay.

Southampton won their fourth-round tie at Preston 1-0 with a goal after 20 minutes from Alan Ball — his first since last August.

Rangers, the Scottish Cup-holders, beat Motherwell 3-1 in a third-round match.

Also advancing to the fourth round are Ayr United, Hibernian and Clydebank.

Monday's scores:

Working at It, the Second Time Around

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner are working at their seventh year of marriage, the second time around, by eliminating separations demanded by movie locations.

Natalie and R.J. were divorced 16 years ago after a brief fling at marriage which saw the young couple taking off in different directions to fulfill film commitments.

Older and wiser now, they've worked out a system of domestic togetherness by refusing to accept movie or television assignments which would keep them apart for more than a week or so.

They've managed to work regularly without sacrificing their careers to their marriage or vice versa.

Natalie took a break the other day on the set of The Last Married Couple in America, in which she stars with George Segal, to say hello to R.J. who had stopped by the set to take some pictures of his wife.

"Even when we're working here in Hollywood, we make it a point to have lunch together now and then," Natalie said. "It's good for us and our marriage.

Natalie enjoyed several years of semi-retirement after completing Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice in 1969 but has since returned to a heavy schedule.

In addition to The Last Married Couple in America, she recently completed the six-hour TV miniseries version of From Here To Eternity for NBC and two other movies, Meteor and The Cracker Factory. She will soon leave for the USSR to star with Peter Ustinov in NBC-TV's Treasures of the Hermitage.

Sad to Say . . . Queen Farewell

TORONTO (CP) — Jamaica plans to abolish the monarchy and become a republic next year, Prime Minister Michael Manley said Monday.

He told reporters that everyone in Jamaica agrees that an Anglo-Saxon queen 4,000 miles away has no relevancy in the black Caribbean country.

That is no reflection on the Queen who is a remarkable person, Manley added, "but we are opposed to the monarchy and I am an unrepentant anti-monarchist."

While Jamaica plans to become a republic, there is sharp controversy on the island whether the proposed president should be elected or appointed.

Manley said he favors a fully-elected president with all the powers of a leader, but the political opposition in Jamaica supports the idea of a symbolic or decorative president with the prime minister remaining as the chief executive.

The issue will be brought before the Jamaican legislature to be followed by a referendum, Manley said.

The Jamaican leader arrived last Saturday for a five-day visit to include meetings with business leaders and speeches to the local Jamaican community.

Manley: Nothing personal

Brewing Industry Recovers Volume

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's beer sales, hurt by strikes last year in Western Canada, are on the upswing again, Molson Companies Ltd. reported Monday.

"Brewing industry volume in Canada returned to a growth position in the third quarter, exceeding last year's (1977's) third quarter by 2.2 per cent," the company said in a report to shareholders.

Molsons' own beer sales increased by 5.6 per cent in the third quarter.

But the resurgence was not enough to offset the declines, caused primarily by the strikes, with the result that industry volume for the last nine months was down 3.4 per cent from last year.

Molsons reported nine-month earnings of $40.7 million or $2.97 a share compared with $28.5 million or $2.08 a share for the same period last year.

Earnings for the third quarter came to $10.4 million from $7.8 million for the same quarter a year ago.

Metric-Switch Tab Raked

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government is keeping Canadians in the dark about the cost of converting to the metric system, says Pat Carson, in charge of metric conversion for Loblaws Ltd.

He said he favors the metric system but believes the switch is too expensive for the country at the present time.

The conversion faces other problems. Paul Boire, director of the Canadian metric commission, told a news conference Monday that the slower pace of conversion in the United States affects Canada and parent companies, suppliers or customers are forcing some Canadian industries to slow their shift.

One example is the plywood industry, which ships about 70 per cent of its output to the U.S.

Bill McCance, of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, said that as American builders still operate in inches and feet, they demand a standard sheet of plywood, four feet by eight feet.

Champions of the metric system argue it will give Canada a trade advantage with metric countries.

The commission has publicized several cases in which Canadian companies have reported their metric products are selling well abroad.

W. H. Martin, vice-president and general sales manager of W. C. Wood Co. Ltd. of Guelph, Ont., said his company has found greater acceptance since it switched.

On July 1, letters will be weighed in grams, and by next January milk will be sold in standard metric sizes.

France, PQ Forge Social Benefit Pact

QUEBEC (CP) — France and Quebec signed a major agreement on social security Monday, a measure aimed at facilitating a freer flow of manpower between the two.

The agreement's main aim is to assure the transferability of social benefits for wage and salary earners moving between France and Quebec.

Premier Raymond Barre of France and Quebec Premier Rene Levesque looked on as the agreement was signed by their subordinates.

Spokesmen for the Quebec government noted that the agreement appears to be much broader than a social security agreement signed between France and Canada in Ottawa last week at the start of Barre's six-day official visit.

The federal agreement apparently covers only pension and retirement benefits while Quebec's agreement covers health and hospital insurance, workmen's compensation and family allowances on top of that.

In many cases, the Quebec-France agreement is designed to eliminate delays in qualifying for benefits under the various plans.

To become eligible for benefits, persons are often required to have lived within the territory for a specified time or to have paid contributions to social security programs for several years. The agreement will wipe out these waiting periods out.

All is not yet settled, however, as the agreements require what one civil servant described as "delicate adjustments" in existing laws. In addition, the agreements must be sanctioned by legislation in France and in Quebec within a year.

The economic goals of the agreement are in line with Barre's message to the national assembly, delivered earlier in the day, in which he called for a greater accent on economic exchanges between France and Quebec.

Economic exchanges are not quite up to par with cultural exchanges between the two, he said.

While no other agreements were signed during Barre's visit to Quebec, there are indications that he and Levesque have important announcements up their sleeve which they will disclose at a news conference in Montreal today.

Barre told the assembly Monday that he and three ministers accompanying him on his visit had discussed co-operation programs with Levesque and his cabinet at a meeting early Monday and that it was agreed to adjust existing programs according to two basic criteria.

The criteria to be used in evaluating programs will be their possible economic impact and their impact on the public. Further details will be given by Levesque, Barre said.

Monday's agreement, coupled with an Ottawa-Quebec agreement signed last year giving Quebec greater control over immigration to the province, seems bound to stimulate an increase in the trans-Atlantic movement of workers between France and Quebec.

Alaska Pipeline Hearings Set

OTTAWA (UPC) — Eighteen days of public hearings on the environmental impact of the Alaska Highway Gas pipeline will start March 19 in 10 communities along the proposed route, it was announced Monday.

The hearings will be co-chaired by Ken McKinnon, a former member of the executive committee of the Yukon Territorial government and the Northern Pipeline Agency's representative, and F. G. Hurtubise, executive chairman of the Federal Environment Assessment Review Office.

Representatives of the Pipeline Agency and the Assessment Review Office, the department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development and the Yukon Territorial government will sit on the panel also.

The hearings will give Yukon residents a chance to respond to the review of the environmental impact study prepared by Foothills Pipe Lines (South Yukon) and the much debated socio-economic and environmental terms drafted by the Northern Pipeline Agency.

When the hearings end in Whitehorse April 27, the environmental assessment panel will submit a report.

Valentine Business Humming family

DETROIT (UPI) — Mike Fredrickson's Valentine season is occasionally frought with the perils of amorous diplomacy.

The Rhodes scholar and former English professor says one customer for his Sing-a-Gram service requested love songs be sent to two women.

"I hope the second one's his mother," he said with a sheepish grin.

Other times, an order can hinge on the regularity of bus service.

A bevy of female bakery workers fond of a particular bus driver retained Frederickson's melodic service to have a man board at a specified stop and deliver the tuneful token just as the bus cruised by the bakery.

Fredrickson, 34, whose Detroit branch of the Minneapolis-based entreprise opened just in time for Valentine's Day, said business has been humming right along. The key to the service's popularity, he said, is the lasting effect of the message.

"After all, flowers wilt — a song doesn't," the bearded musician said.

The Detroit manager of the crooning courier service, Mark Van Harren, 23, said he already has delivered some personalized song messages for customers afraid of forgetting the holiday or merely wishing to beat the rush.

Among the more unusual delivery settings for the music education graduate from Wayne State University was a bowling alley.

"It was from eight children to their mother. Everyone in the family was there, bowling in two lanes," Van Harren said. "And I'll tell you, it was harder than hell to hear it."

Van Harren and his two part-time aides have cleared their schedules to handle the gush of lovers' wishes they expect to face Wednesday.

The minstrels, guitars in hand and dressed in pinstripe shirts, arm garters and telegraphers' caps, plan to work day and night delivering musical compositions to Detroit recipients at $15 a song over the phone or $25 in person. Suburban deliveries cost extra, they said.

Fredrickson said the Valentine's Day wishes are "usually pretty straightforward."

Although the business is new, historians say the idea isn't.

Musical messages flourished during the time of medieval balladeers, but the contemporary history of singing telegrams started in 1933. That's when Walter Winchell asked Western Union to send a singing "Happy Birthday" telegram to singer Eddie Cantor.

Old Legend Links Tulips and Love

The association of tulips with love is older than Valentine's Day. According to an ancient Middle Eastern legend the first tulip sprung when the tears of a love-sick Persian boy hit the scorching desert sands.

Just how the ancients took care of their bouquets isn't known, but their life can be prolonged with a small amount of care.

Actually, a bouquet arranged by a florist needs needs only to have its water changed daily. However, if you receive tulips and hyacinths in loose bunches there is some care they need in order to mature and stay fresh for as long as possible.

Cut a quarter of an inch from each stem on a slant, using a sharp knife. Tulip and hyacinth flowers, like love, continue to grow. To boost them to maturity, wrap them — stems and blossoms — in wax paper and soak them in a bucket of tepid water.

Leave them in a cool place for three to six hours. Stems will lengthen and buds will begin to open.

If your Valentine's Day gift comes growing in a pot, water it every day or two. Make sure soil never dries out.

Place the flowering bulb plant where it can enjoy indirect sunlight without the drying blasts of heaters and radiators.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm 33, divorced, and have been dating Gary for two years. He says he loves me and wants to marry me, but I'm not ready for another marriage just yet.

My problem is the way Gary holds on to his money. He's never offered to pay my babysitter. (I have two children.) Twice I've had to ask Gary to lend me money for the sitter because I was short.

Now he wants me to go on a ski vacation with him and expects me to pay all my own expenses — plane fare, lodging, meals and even the ski-lift tickets!

My girlfriends tell me that when they go on trips with their boyfriends, the guys pay for everything. It's not that Gary can't afford to treat me. Far from it. He is very well-heeled.

This money problem is making me resent him. Am I expecting too much? What do you think?

MONEY TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Generous he's not. But before you label him a well-heeled heel, consider this. Gary may need to prove to himself that he's not buying your companionship. Rejoice. If you decide to say goodbye, you'll owe him nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman who gave birth to a fine, healthy baby boy three weeks ago.

What should I say to women who criticize me for not breast-feeding my baby?

My mother-in-law suggested I tell them I don't have enough milk to nurse my baby, but that isn't the case. My decision was a personal choice, and one I am happy with.

I talked it over with my doctor, and he assured me that a bottle-fed baby gets as much nourishment as a breast-fed baby, and as long as a close physical contact is maintained during feeding time my baby will not suffer feelings of neglect.

Please help me.

NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your honest response: "My decision is a personal choice, and ane I am happy with" is far better than the cop-out suggested by your mother-in-law. Use it.

DEAR ABBY: Now that so many couples are living together without marriage, how does one address letters, cards and invitations to both of them?

My wife says if HE is living in HER home, they are addressed Mary Jones and John Brown. But if SHE is living in HIS home, they are addressed John Brown and Mary Jones.

Who is right?

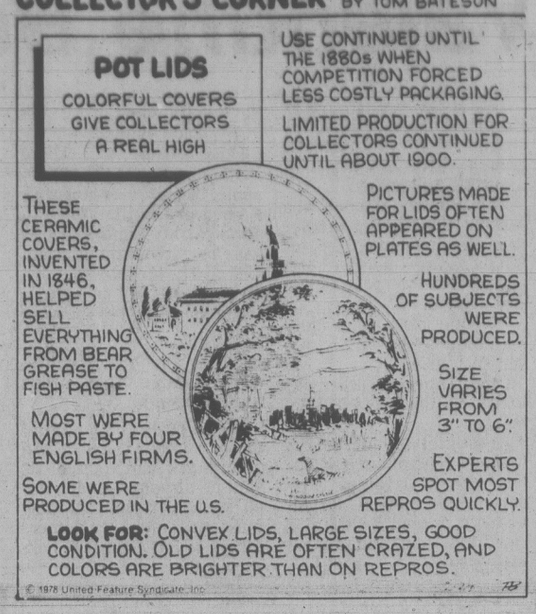
US

DEAR US: No matter whose home it is, they are addressed alphabetically — each name written on a separate line.

Example:
Mr. John Brown
Ms. Mary Jones
Street address
City, province and postal code

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIRGO: Up front is best. Tell him you're gay. If he can't handle it, it's HIS problem.

COLLECTOR'S CORNER BY TOM BATESON



Short Skirts For Summer

PARIS (AP) — Jules-Francois Crahay at Lanvin showed beautiful women fitted out for the races at Longchamp or for a ball in the Bois de Boulogne in his couture collection for next summer.

He climbed on the retro bandwagon with a new short length, about five centimetres below the knee-line.

Most remarkable are his lean suits, beautifully cut in soft wool jerseys, with little cutaway jackets that have squared-off shoulders, welt seams over piped narrow skirts. Deep shawl collars or huge puffy taffeta bows in hot colors top off these super-suits, best in navy and a contrasting cream or bright color.

Draped or jabot bodices are another look under suits. And some swirly gored skirts are certainly a harbinger of things to come. After all these tubular skirts, we'll be ready for some freedom. And provocative it all is, with wrap-around skirts opening up to show a big glimpse of stocking.

Tipped boater hats with wide bands top neatly-knotted or rolled hairdoes.

Straight pants were shown, but only summarily.

Late afternoon looked vaguely late-1930s with yards of crepe de chine, often polka-dotted, a favorite with Paris couture this time. Sleeves are puffy and inset over pleated skirts, or widely capped, in draped, crossed bodices, slashed to the waist and sashed as well.

Another favorite here is the polka-dotted two-piece crepe with narrow skirt and bousy sleeveless top, belted for a peplum effect.

The dotty look goes right into evening in flouncy, draped dresses, called the 1938 evening gown. They are often slit right up to hip or waist, sometimes with halter necks.

For debutantes are a group of tight strapless tops in white lace, with enormous taffeta bows at the waist, and puffy taffeta skirts, sometimes with pin-dots. Sequined flowers, the sparkle of rhinestones give glitter to evenings, on bright reds, kelley greens. And a series of purple or lavendar chiffons bring the whole evening line to an elegant end.

Much younger and more for the disco set is the Ungaro collection. The shorter skirt is nothing new here, but the bigger shoulder is — on tightly belted jackets that have shawl collars, sometimes quilted.

Jackets and coats with the huge new shoulder and puffy sleeves are often in satin, sometimes in ribbed wool.

And Ungaro goes against the black, navy and white trends with plenty of hot color—like raspberry or shocking pink, purple and blazing turquoise.

DEAR MR. VICHERT:

There's this boy I like. Let's say his name is Mike. I like him very much, but he says "Nothing is going to work out." We spend time together once in a while: He comes over to my house and I go over to his.

Once, he said that we could not "just be friends" — then what does he expect to be?

Once he told me to forget about him and I went through a lot of pain. Then, later, he asked me out. We had a lot of fun, but then he put me down again.

I want him to make up his mind. What can I say without him thinking I'm being too pushy? I'm not — this has been going on for two years. My family and friends have noticed my emotional displeasure, but there's not much they can do.

ANSWER: You have probably realized by now how difficult it is to try to change another person, and after trying for two yars to get Mike to make some sense I wouldn't blame you for giving up. It certainly is a statement of how much you like him that you have continued for this long.

I wonder if part of the problem is that it seems no matter what Mike does, or says to you, you are willing to put up with it. I can understand this because you like Mike, but it may not be too helpful to Mike. He may end up feeling that it doesn't matter what he does because you will like him anyway.

I think that the important thing for you to do is to make up your mind about how you feel about him, what things you will and will not tolerate him doing, and how long you are willing to continue in an ambivalent relationship.

It may happen that once you make up your mind to a few things and let him know, it could stabilize him and help him realize that in a sense his behavior is taking advantage of your affection for him and therefore motivate him to treat you more consistently.

It is important for you to know what you do and don't want in a relationship and be clear about it so that the other persons will know. I hope it works out for you.

DEAR DR. COTTER:

I am a 19-year-old Chinese-Canadian girl, and I speak for myself as well as for two others who share the same problem. We are aware that we are intelligent, fun and attractive. Yet weekend after weekend we are left spending time with each other.

We are not snobby and we try to join gatherings where there are chances of meeting men: dances, church activities, swimming, skating, skiing, night courses. So we are not recluses.

We are not particular about dating Chinese or Caucasians, as long as they are compatible. We feel totally identified with western culture, and are not the dutiful, quiet and submissive stereotype of the Chinese girl.

Short of sending for C.O.D. grooms from Hong Kong, we may as well invest in rocking chairs and knitting needles, as we're embracing spinsterhood at an early age.

ANSWER: Perhaps you have embraced one aspect of western culture too enthusiastically: the dating game, and the idea that you must catch a man. I am not unsympathetic with your quandary, but think you must find a way arond it, other than the C.O.D. grooms.

What will attract the right kind of male friends — or female friends, for that matter — is that you should BE someone. You say you are intelligent and attractive, and your letter shows a good sense of humor, so you are well on your way. So concentrate on a career and on giving hospitality to people who are interesting for better reasons than that they wear pants and grow whiskers. Then write us back the results after a year.

Abdominal Pains Could Be Angina

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

My mother is 79. For a long time she has had terrible pain in her abdomen. Recently, a specialist was called in to see her and she was told she has abdominal angina. Doesn't angina apply only to the heart? — Mrs. M.M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

Angina refers to a condition usually associated with spasmodic attacks of intense pain. Angina pectoris refers to severe radiating pain from the heart, through the shoulder and often down through the left arm. Angina pectoris is caused by an inadequate supply of blood and oxygen to the heart muscle. Arteriosclerosis (some narrowing of the blood vessels to the heart) is responsible for these excruciating, paroxysmal and spasmodic attacks in the region of the heart.

In a similar way, there can be an inadequate supply of blood and oxygen to the small and large intestines. This, too, may be caused by narrowing of the blood vessels leading to the intestinal tract. Sometimes, after eating a heavy meal, not enough blood is carried to the intestines through arteries that are narrowed by disease. When this occurs, severe abdominal pain, known as abdominal angina, may follow. The diagnosis of abdominal angina in the elderly is a very astute one and is considered when there is no other apparent explanation for these attacks of pain.

When this condition is suspected, it is always suggested that the patient eat small quantities of food at more frequent intervals, rather than overload the distressed bowels.

Is ether still used as an anesthetic? Although I'm 62, I remember with horror the suffocating feeling of being given ether for a hernia operation. I can also remember the nausea as if it happened yesterday. I ask this because my daughter is going to have an operation soon. — Mr. R.E.V.

Dear Mr. V.:

Although ether is as safe and effective as any other anesthetic, newer drugs have been developed and are being used today because of the unpleasantness you describe. These disagreeable associations with ether do remain in the memory of many, many people.

Today, many new drugs are used which are as safe as ether but do not carry with them the negative qualities such as the sense of suffocation and the post-operative nausea and vomiting.

Few areas in modern medicine have made such great strides as modern anesthesiology. The safety factors, the ease with which patients take their anesthesia and the reduction of post-operative distress are all testimonials to the advances in this important field of medicine.

The newer knowledge of anesthesiology has lifted the burden of anxiety from surgeons who can now proceed with their operations in total confidence that their patients will be kept at a high level of safety.

120 Years for Methodists

elizabeth forbes

One hundred and twenty years ago today — February 13, 1859 — the first Methodist service of worship was held in Victoria.

That event was remembered on the weekend and the anniversary commemorated in Metropolitan United Church which properly traces its orgin to the first worship service.

A history of the church, compiled and written by Hartley Sargent, has also been published to mark this historic anniversary.

In the introduction Mr. Sargent, a member of the historical committee of the church, explains that he has attempted to tell something of its story, to touch on some of the changes in facilities and policy and to provide notes on a few of the many organizations whose activities combine to make up much of the life of the church.

It took the best part of a year — starting early in 1978 — to complete the manuscript and prepare it for publication.

"I had a good start on the first hundred years," Sargent says, "through a manuscript written by the late Mrs. T. H. (Thelma) Johns, daughter of Rev. W. J. Sipprell, minister of the church from 1920 to 1931.

"There is also a brochure published at the time of the hundredth anniversary."

Sargent read through the 400 or more pages of the Johns manuscript and the brochure and took many significant items from those pages.

Then he turned to annual reports of the church to fill out the last 20 years.

Next came the work of writing the history as it now appears in printed form.

Here Sargent gives full marks to his wife Jean "for typing a great number of drafts, for editorial suggestions, for research, for typing the final manuscript and for putting up for months with clutter of source materials and a litter of manuscript."

The book is divided into several sections, starting with the story of the first hundred years.

In 1859, Sargent tells us, Victoria was a community of about 3,000 people. It was already served by an Episcopal Church headed by Rev. E. R. Cridge and by an active group of Roman Catholics under Bishop Demers who were then building a church.

The year before (1858) J. T. Pidwell, a Methodist newcomer from the Maritimes wrote to the Missionary Society of the Canada Conference of the Methodist Church asking for help in introducing Methodism to Victoria.

In turn that society wrote to the British Wesleyan Church in London, and it provided £500 to equip missionaries and send them to the west coast.

Dr. Ephraim Evans, Edward White, Ebenezer Robson and Arthur Browning were chosen and with the wives and families of Evans and White they travelled from Upper Canada (now Ontario) to New York, by ship to Panama, across the Isthmus and again by ship to San Francisco and Portland, arriving in Victoria on February 10, 1859.

The four missionaries immediately called on Governor Douglas and he made arrangements for them to hold that first service on February 13, 1859, in the new police barracks.

Again, through Governor Douglas, the missionaries were given three lots at the corner of Pandora and Broad Streets where the corner stone of the Pandora Street Methodist Church was laid on August 15 that year and the church was dedicated in May, 1860.

Dr. Evans, as superintendent of the Wesleyan Missions in British Columbia, made Victoria his headquarters and remained seven years.

Browning was sent to Nanaimo, White to Queensborough (later New Westminster) while Robson's circuit included the gold rush towns of Hope and Yale and the mining camps on the Fraser River in between.

Sargent takes us through early years when the growing church undertook work among the Indian people and he tells us how it assisted in establishing Centennial, Esquimalt, James Bay and Belmont (Spring Ridge) as sister churches.

He writes of an eventual need for larger quarters that prompted purchase of a site at the corner of Pandora and Quadra where the sanctuary-Sunday school complex of Pandora Avenue Methodist Church was started in 1890 and where services were inaugurated on May 17, 1891.

How the name of the church was changed to Metropolitan Methodist Church, how it eventually included two other groups that had been separate churches — the Congregational and the Chinese Methodist — and how, in 1925, all three became parts of the United Church of Canada.

He covers events in the depression years of the 30s and through the Second World War, and he records the population growth following that war and the opening, in October, 1952, of Metropolitan Hall, later to be renamed Pendray Hall.

Then he continues with the opening of a new Christian Education Building in April, 1959, and of the Spencer Memorial Chapel in September, 1960.

The sub-title chosen for this interesting story is A Downtown Church in a Growing City and in this connection Sargent had added a final section in which he writes briefly of Victoria, its natural setting and its development in the past 120 years.

The history is rounded out with a fine selection of pictures that include the present ministers, Rev. A. E. King with his wife, and Rev. Laura Butler.

There are lists of notable wedding and ordination anniversaries and hundredth birthdays of members; stories of the installation of the organ, the organ chimes and tower bells, and names of leaders in various phases of the church work from ministers to the office staff.

You'll find copies of this well-presented and well-written book, titled Metropolitan United Church 1859-1979, in the church office, 1411 Quadra Street.

Praise Pays Off

LONDON (CP) — Potted plants, pictures, kind words and projects do more to improve children's grades and behavior than severe discipline, smaller schools or segregating by ability, a recent survey shows. Furthermore, schools with good organization and praise for success have better teaching results than those with just a lot of cash.

Opening lead — six of diamonds.

Usually, the success or failure of a finesse is essentially a matter of luck. It therefore follows that whenever there is a finesse position, declarer should start looking for alternative methods of play that do not risk the danger associated with a finesse.

Consider this deal where some declarers might instinctively go wrong. West leads a diamond and East cashes his K-A before shifting to a spade.

It is tempting to finesse the queen of spades, but it would be wrong to do so. The fact is that a spade finesse, whether successful or not, has nothing to do with the chances of making five clubs. Taking a spade finesse would endanger the contract without increasing the chances of making it.

The outcome depends on whether or not West has the king of hearts. Therefore, in line with that, declarer should go up with the ace of spades, draw trumps, and take a heart finesse. If it succeeds, he returns to his hand with a trump and takes another heart finesse. He then discards the queen of spades on the ace of hearts, thus making the contract.

It is true that if your one and only concern were to make two spade tricks instead of one, you would finesse the queen of spades. But here the more pressing aim is to make five clubs, and that overrides the question of making two spade tricks.

It is also true that if East has both major kings you can hold yourself to down one by finessing the spade return, but that is an insignificant factor under the circumstances. Making the contract is the major consideration.

FLOODS, STRIKE PLAGUE LISBON

LISBON (Reuter) — Floods in Portugal have left more than 2,000 persons homeless, cutting road and rail links, reducing water supplies in the capital to a trickle and causing frequent power failures. At least three persons are feared dead.

Telephone workers in Lisbon and the northern city of Oporto have defied a government order to return to work or face dismissal. The lack of telephones has made the task of the emergency services even more difficult.

The 10,000 telephone workers went on strike a week ago to back demands for a 19-per-cent pay increase against a management offer of 18 per cent.

As flooding spread, the government ordered the men back to work in the national interest, complaining that they havefnot maintained the bare minimum of emergency services needed to keep communications going during the crisis.

The union complained the government was using the weather as a ploy to turn public opinion against them and break the strike. They will meet again on Thursday to review their position.

QUEEN ELIZABETH walks with Shaikh Al Sabah, Kuwait's ruler, at Kuwait Airport Monday, marking the first time a British monarch has visited that country. The royal tour of Persian Gulf states has been interpreted as an attempt to consolidate U.K. links with the region.

Tractors Parade in Snowstorm

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 200 tractors paraded under police escort to the Lincoln Memorial in a blinding snowstorm Monday as farmers continued their protest for higher farm prices.

The tractors formed a tractorcade that, with the storm, slowed traffic on major streets to a crawl all afternoon and into the evening. The demonstration was scheduled to last five hours, but was cut short because of the weather.

At the monument, about 300 farmers and their families stood on the steps in the bitter cold while Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting representative in the House of Representatives, thanked them "for opening our eyes" to the plight of the farmer.

An unidentified protester opened the rally by taking note of the birthday of Lincoln, "a true advocate of human rights."

That's what the farmers are talking about . . . That's why we're here, but (President Carter) doesn't care."

Earlier Monday, a U.S. agriculture department official said security officials have decided to close the doors at the department's administration building to the protesting farmers at night.

However, some of the farmers are believed to have used government telephones to make long-distance calls, but the number of calls could not be determined until bills are received from the telephone comany, officials said.

The administration building contains the offices of senior officials, including Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. It faces the Mall, where the tractors and other vehicles have been confined by police for a week.

Normally, persons entering and leaving the building — including employees — are required to sign a register after 6 p.m. each working day and on weekends. That requirement was suspended so farmers could have easier access to toilets and other facilities.

Bail Refused Captain

HONG KONG (Reuter) — The Taiwanese captain of the refugee freighter Huey Fong appeared in court today with seven other persons on conspiracy charges.

Bail was refused and they were detained in custody for one week.

The ship's captain has been charged with bringing unscheduled passengers into Hong Kong. He arrived here last month with almost 3,400 Vietnamese refugees on board.

The eight persons, including three of the ship's crew, appeared in court today on two counts of conspiracy in connection with the Huey Fong's arrival in Hong Kong and its passengers.

A special police unit was set up to investigate refugee rackets involving those who allegedly sell places on freighters to people who want to leave Vietnam.

Among those in court today were two Hong Kong residents, questioned earlier by police and released on bail, as well as a Huey Fong "passenger."

It has been alleged that the man, Kwok Wa-leung, told immigration authorities he was a Vietnam resident while police investigations showed he is a Hong Kong resident, a government spokesman said last week.

SAVED TO DIE

BANGKOK (Reuter) — A Thai man who tried to commit suicide last Friday after hearing he had been sentenced to death has been executed by a firing squad, police said today.

Saithong Saengkaew was one of four men sentenced to death without trial by Deputy Prime Minister General Boonchai Bamrungphong for the rape and murder of a woman and her boy-friend.

The other three were executed on Saturday. But Saithong stabbed himself with a broken bottle on hearing the sentence. He was treated in a hospital during the weekend and released for his execution.

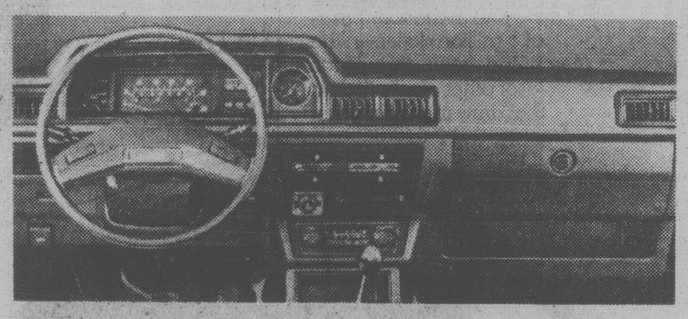
WHAT IMPRESSES YOU ABOUT MERCEDES, SEVILLE AND VOLVO, YOU'LL GET IN A TOYOTA.



In 1979, the discriminating automobile buyer will realize an important fact: the new breed of Toyotas offers an affordable alternative to the prohibitively priced, quality engineered cars of Europe and North America.

Comparisons prove our point. Compare, for example, the sporty, practical new Toyota Corona Liftback with Mercedes, Seville and Volvo.

The Europeans and Toyota have proven MacPherson strut front suspensions with stabilizer bars to reduce unsprung front end weight. All four have steel belted radial tires and unitized body construction.

Like the Mercedes 280E and Volvo 240, Toyota Corona is powered by a powerful overhead cam engine. Like the Cadillac Seville, Corona has electronic ignition. And only the sleek, new 5-door Corona Liftback offers easy rear access and split fold down rear seats for maximum passenger/cargo capacity.

More facts, more features, more car for the money. Corona for 1979 offers a choice of two transmissions: 3-speed automatic and 5-speed overdrive all synchromesh (which is not available on Mercedes, Seville or Volvo).

Built for Canada. Toyota's experience through years of comprehensive winter testing in Canada has produced automobiles with more useful anti-rust features than most. This includes extensive use of galvanized metal, plastic liners, zinc primers and factory undercoating. To prove the point, Toyota offers a 3-year anti-perforation warranty as a special feature on all its cars.

Value is the criterion for excellence. The average three year old Toyota is worth about 75% of its original purchase price. A visit to your Toyota dealer will confirm a startling fact: his warranty business on Toyotas purchased in the last few years is virtually nil. As the third largest automobile manufacturer in the world with over 40 years of experience building small cars, Toyota has only sought to build the "best" car, meaning the best car for the money. Buy it. For all its worth.

Queen Cheers Up Duke

LOS ANGELES — Despite a lingering infection, actor John Wayne said Monday that he is "feeling fine and going to make it." In an interview, Wayne credited mountains of letters from well-wishers — including one from Queen Elizabeth — with keeping his spirits up as he recovered from surgery to remove his cancerous stomach. "We got 30,000 letters at the hospital . . . and there were another 10,000 here when I got home," Wayne said.

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. — Inca and Catherine proudly marched down the aisle together to receive special honors awards during Adelphi University commencement ceremonies. Catherine Gleitz of Baldwin, N.Y., was honored for her four-year, 3.9 average at the school. Inca, a labrador retriever, was honored for seeing the blind woman through the task.

HOLLYWOOD — Jean Renoir, an artist's son who achieved his own renown as a maker of classic films, died Monday at 84. Son of the celebrated impressionist painter Auguste Renoir, the French movie-maker died after a long illness at his home in the Benedict Canyon area of Los Angeles. Family spokesman Nick Frangakis said Renoir's body is to be flown to France next week for a funeral with state honors.

EVANS, Colo. — It took 21 years, but a former Evans resident has come clean and paid the city for some windows he broke as a boy. "Please accept this cheque (for $50) and my apology for some windows I broke out of the fire station when I was a young boy about 21 years ago," said a letter from Melber, Ky. "I wish I hadn't been so slow in correcting this. My humble apologies." Evans City Council voted to accept the $50 and put it in the fire department's equipment fund. The man will be told what the money was used for.

PARIS — Actress Marlene Dietrich is "in fine form" despite suffering a "tiny crack" in the bone of her twice-broken leg five weeks ago, a close friend said today. A report from friends on Friday that she had broken her leg for the third time prompted Miss Dietrich to confirm that she had an accident. But through a close friend she denied that her leg was actually broken and in a cast.

TORONTO — Singer Anne Murray, whose second child is expected to be born about the beginning of April, will not attend the Grammy Awards ceremony Thursday in Los Angeles, a spokesman said today. Miss Murray, nominated for four awards, is feeling fine but her doctor advised against the five-hour flight to Los Angeles, the spokesman said. The singer's recent ear-and-throat infection has cleared up, the spokesman said. She is nominated in four categories — best female performance, best pop record, best country record and song of the year — and was to have been a presenter and performer in the 21st annual Grammy presentation.

TOP TWIDDLERS

DALLAS (AP) — Thumb-twiddling fraternity brothers Ben Sheeran and Brian Fewell have set a record — for marathon thumb twiddling.

Sheeran and Fewell, both 19-year-old Sigma Chi Delta pledges at Dallas Baptist College, twiddled their thumbs for 26 hours.

PLIGHT TROTH WITH PLINTH?

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — Next Valentines Day it could be hearts, flowers and a Valentine plinth.

The Leif Ericson Society, still plugging its Viking hero as the original European discoverer of America, plans to offer a rune-carving class here.

"People sign up for so many meaningless classes these days," said society president Ivar Christensen. "Why not add a little culture to your life?"

By this time next year, he said, successful students may "deliver a Valentine plinth to their sweethearts," though postage might pose a problem for some.

Runes were the characters of the Viking alphabet, and often are found on old monuments and stone slabs. Students who sign up the for the weekly session must provide their own materials: a granite slab, a chisel and a heavy mallet.

28 Years — in a Cave

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — For 28 years Stefan Pietroszys and his Lithuanian wife hid in a cave because they were afraid Russian secret agents would ship them back to the Soviet Union.

Saturday, Pietroszys, 81, emerged from the cave for the first time since 1968 and said his 67-year-old wife Genovefa died.

Today he had his first hot meal since emerging from the hideaway, downing a bowl of porridge and mushrooms washed down with a glass of milk at the Salvation Army hostel where he is staying.

Pietroszys told Salvation Army Maj. Ivan Unicomb that his wife suffered chest pains Thursday and then "just closed her eyes."

"I tried to keep her warm but her hands were cold."

In the outback 12 miles from Sydney, the elderly couple lived on bush rats, berries and handouts since 1951 when they moved into a cave in thick bushland near a freeway.

The couple emigrated to Australia as displaced persons shortly after the end of the Second World War.

A Salvation Army major had tried to persuade the couple to leave their cave and accept a pension.

Pietroszys rejected the pension, telling an official from the Department of Social Security, "We have never worked in Australia . . . have never paid taxes . . . therefore we are not entitled to accept the pension."

GORDON HEAD
A unique and exciting, totally modern home belonging naturally to its open easy-care lot — 1.5 acres of gently sloping rock offering unobstructed views and sunshine with 355 ft. of waterfront. Trustees, Teachers Clash over Unity

The Greater Victoria school administration and Oak Bay high school teachers took verbal pot shots at each other Monday night.

The dispute is over the amalgamation of the junior and high schools last fall.

The teachers claim the move was made without any consultation and said a continuing lack of consultation has left school staff in the dark as to how to proceed.

The teachers said the amalgamation was ill-conceived and an analysis of ensuing problems has been either superficial or non-existent.

Communication problems, the teachers say, have been caused by the "150 yards of mud" that separate the two buildings and the problem will get worse when programs become more amalgamated.

They complained about sapping of student energy by travelling and lugging books, duplication or inaccessibility of special facilities such as libraries and laboratories, and discipline problems caused by students between classes.

In an opposing brief, however, the district administration said the school principal supports the amalgamation and combining the two programs gives better flexibility in the offering of courses, particularly as declining enrolment reduces registration in some electives, and permits close co-ordination of junior and senior curriculums.

The brief also hinted that the Oak Bay teaching staff is not as unanimous in opposing amalgamation as the teachers claim.

School trustees took the administration's side on most of the points raised.

"It's not indicative of creative intelligence at work when the teachers suggest the 150-yard distance between the two buildings is causing so many problems," trustee Win Mott said.

The board directed the administration to meet with the Oak Bay staff and parents in order to improve communications.

Gloxinia Plants Remember Brazilian Forest Conditions

GARDENING
jack beastall

Some indoor gardeners find the Gloxinia a most rewarding plant to grow while to others it has been a problem plant. Most of us start with a fairly large tuber, quite often received as a gift plant.

The tubers have a natural flowering time in late July through August. After flowering, the leaves mature and lose their turgidity and that is the time to withhold water so the tubers may ripen.

When the foliage has dried and fallen, the tubers are stored in dry sand at a steady winter temperature of 7° C.

The tubers are started into growth again in spring, the exact time varying with the locality and the propagating equipment available. Locally, March is chosen by owners of heated greenhouses, and generally April for starting in the house.

The tubers are potted in a mixture of equal parts of leafmold, good compost soil and moistened peat, with some coarse sand and charcoal added, and the pots placed into a steady warm temperature.

The gloxinia needs similar conditions to those found in the Brazilian forests where it is native: warmth, shade and humidity. The plants are always shaded from direct sunlight.

Bud drop, and buds failing to open, are problems often encountered under conditions in the home.

Buds not opening is the result of trying to grow the plants over winter instead of putting the tubers into storage. The normal flowering time is August, no later.

Another cause of bud drop and failure to open is caused by growing the tubers in too small a pot, The tubers make a large mass of roots and need a good-sized pot to accommodate them.

A tuber three inches in diameter goes into a five-inch pot, a four-inch tuber into a six-inch pot. This is the opposite to the usual rule for potting house plants.

Should the buds drop on a mature plant (not seedlings) at the normal flowering time, it often helps to use one measuring teaspoon of superphosphate to one gallon of water in place of a regular watering, and repeat once in three weeks.

During the growing period the plant should be misted daily with tepid water. This is done by directing the spray upward from the side of the plant and allowing the fine mist to fall like a fog on the foliage. Never allow water to touch the crown of the tuber.

Growing temperatures are important to success with gloxinias. Daytime temperature can be 21° to 25°C. but night temperature should be not over 17° C. or growth will become soft and sappy.

Never overwater. Plenty of water is stored in the tubers and daily dribbling is something to avoid. Excessive watering will blast the flower buds at anytime of year. Water only when the foliage shows signs of wilting.

It will be noticed that tubers stored in dry sand will start growth if in too warm a temperature and make good plants using only the water and food stored in the tubers.

Gloxinias do not need a "pill" every few days. In fact, no fertilizer should be mixed with the soil at potting time, and none given during the growing period. The one exception is plants with many buds at flowering time. If the plant is well loaded with buds, a small feeding of African Violet fertilizer may be given when the buds are showing color, and once in 10 days during the period of full bloom, not after.

Tubers deteriorate with age. When five inches across and five inches deep, the number of flowers produced can be as low as 30 per cent of those a small tuber will produce. Large tubers are cut into five or more pieces, potted, to make new plants.

A FITTING DECISION

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia drivers now can relax behind their wheels, secure in the knowledge that part of their annual insurance payments are no longer helping to keep insurance executives fit.

The Insurance Corp. of British Columbia said Monday it has cancelled a $10,032 trial fitness program for 38 of its senior executives.

Corporation president Robbie Sherrell cancelled the program after a majority of listeners responding to a poll by an open-line radio show objected to the public paying one-half cent a premium to finance the exercisers.

"We are a Crown corporation and we have to be responsible to those paying premiums," said ICBC spokesman Bev Penhall, who also lost his paid fitness membership.

The executives were participating on their own time, he said, adding that the corporation got a 20-per-cent discount from the YMCA.

"It was a one-year trial program to see if it affected absenteeism and productivity," he said.

YMCA spokesman Noel Caryll called the cancellation "a setback" to the physical fitness movement.

He said fitness programs help boost executive productivity, reduce time lost through illness, improve the work done by executives and reduce the risk of losing executives at an early age by heart attacks.

"In the long run, ICBC is going to lose out," Caryll said.

Burning Memory Even From Fast Peek

ON MONDAY, Feb. 26, Canada will experience its last total solar eclipse of this century.

It's a sight many will never see again.

But the Canadian Association of Optometrists warns persons who try to view this rare event without first properly protecting their eyes may end up with the memory burned into their vision forever.

The sun's rays are so powerful, the association says, that severe damage could result to the eyes of anyone foolhardy enough to view the eclipse directly.

Solar rays burn through the eye tissue. The result is a life sentence of blurred vision. No medical treatment can repair the damage.

The association says there is no foolproof way of observing the eclipse directly. Tinted or opaque glasses are no protection unless the material has an opacity equivalent to number 14-gauge welder's glass. No glance, however brief, is safe. Neither is it safe to screw up the eyes or look through a pinhole.

Children are most at risk. The association suggests parents and teachers should supervise children closely and "stop curiosity or bravado" that might lead them into danger.

The safest way to watch the eclipse is on television. Alternatively persons can make their own projection systems.

A simple method is to take a piece of cardboard and cut a pinhole in the centre. Then, placing the cardboard in the path of the sun's rays, the holder projects the image on to a screen. Observers should watch with their backs to the sun.

The eclipse will begin here at 7:16 a.m., reach its maximum — 98 per cent coverage — at 8:19 a.m. and end at 9:26 a.m.

The last partial eclipse seen in Victoria was on Oct. 12, 1977. The last total eclipse in Canada occurred over Ontario and Quebec on July 10, 1972. There was another total eclipse that intersected near Yellowknife on July 20, 1963.

Victoria hasn't had a total eclipse pass directly over the city since March 25, 1876.

Although there are at least two and as many as five eclipses every year in various parts of the world, Canadians will have to wait until Aug. 21, 2017, to see one again. That will cross over continental U.S. A total eclipse will pass over Canada on April 18, 2024.

Frank Younger, an astrophysicist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich, said the Feb. 26 eclipse will strike at 8:09 a.m. 1,000 miles west of the Oregon coast.

FIVE MINUTES later Astoria will be engulfed in darkness as the moon's umbra or shadow races eastward, Younger says. The shadow will follow an 180-mile-wide path along the Washington-Oregon border into central Idaho and most of Montana. It will enter Canada near Estevan, Saskatchewan, pass over Manitoba, Hudson's Bay and end in Greenland.

Younger says the best places to observe the eclipse all lie east of the Cascades.

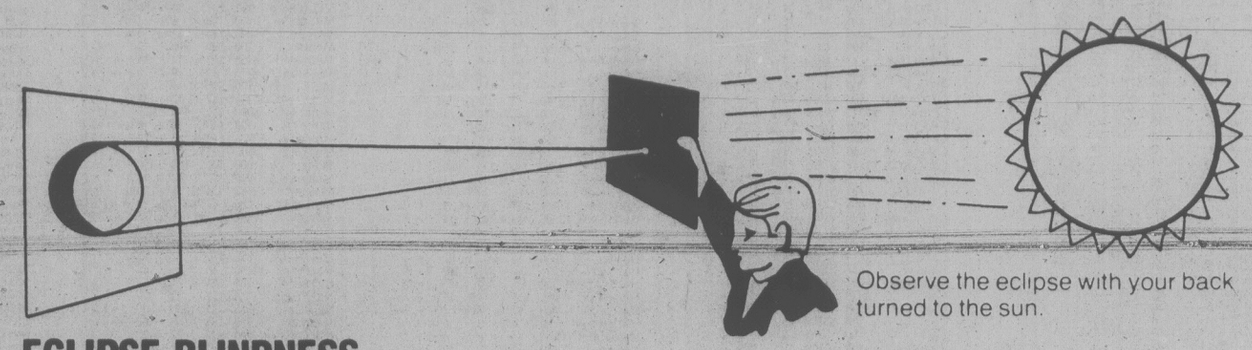
The northern limit of the moon's umbra will be marked by the cities of Olympia, Wash., Kellogg, Idaho, Haver, Man., Broadview, Sask, and Gypsumville, Man.

The centre will pass directly over or near St. Helens and Milton-Freewater in Oregon, Helena and Wolf Point in Montana and Brandon and Riverton in Manitoba.

The southern edge will touch Albany and Baker in Oregon, Dillon and Wibaux in Montana, Rugby in North Dakota and Whitemouth in Manitoba.

Younger says that only where the eclipse is total will the sun's beautiful pearl-white corona be seen.

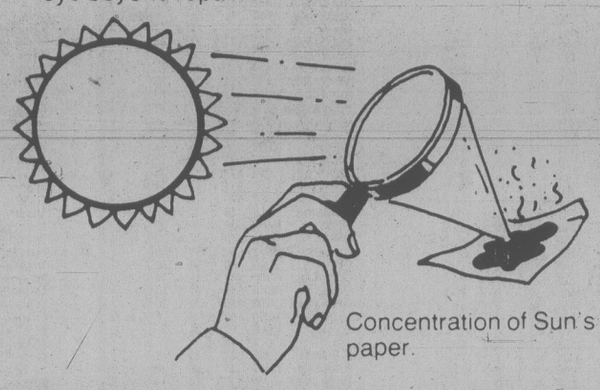
● Make your own projection system. Punch a hole 3-5mm diameter in a card about 30cm square. Hold the card in the sun. A perfect image of the eclipse can be thrown onto any white screen up to 2-6 metres away.



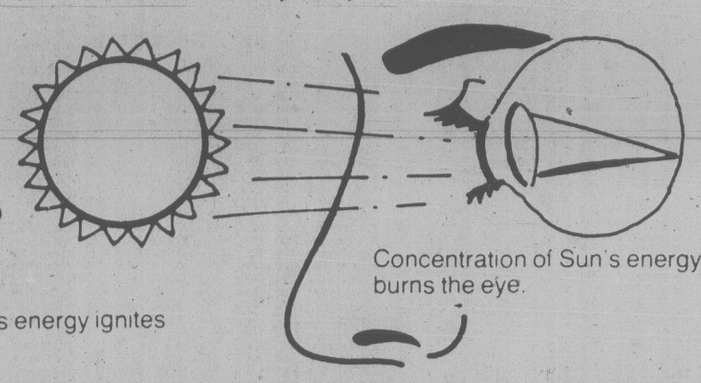
Observe the eclipse with your back turned to the sun.

ECLIPSE-BLINDNESS
Is permanent loss of eye-sight caused by the heat of the sun burning the delicate nerve elements of the eye beyond repair.

The optical parts of your eye act just like a magnifying lens to focus the intense heat of the sun onto the back of your eye.



Concentration of Sun's energy ignites paper.



Concentration of Sun's energy burns the eye.

Aldermen Protest Layoffs In Saanich Parks Branch

Several Saanich aldermen voiced strong criticism Monday night of the recent decision to lay off five parks department employees, some of whom had worked for the municipality for two years.

They argued that such action is indefensible in today's difficult economic climate, and that the municipality must attempt to stabilize its employment situation so workers can enjoy some degree of job security.

Arising out of the parks committee debate was a recommendation that department heads submit early proposals for 1979 capital works projects with a view to rehiring the laid-off five.

The attack on the layoff decision was led by Ald. Irene Block, who suggested it was made to "propitiate" the new chairman of the committee, Ald. Geoff Vantreight.

Terming the action reprehensible, Block said the men concerned were alleged to be temporary, yet they had been on Saanich's payroll for a considerable time.

"When does temporary stop and permanent begin? Why now, when we haven't even put together a budget? How come at the beginning of February we discover there's not enough work for them?"

Block said the layoffs were not humane nor even moral.

She received strong support from Ald. Howard Sturrock, who said he was shocked to discover employees could not be juggled between the public works and parks department to ensure employment on a year-round basis.

"I would like to see us maintain as stable a work force as we can," Sturrock said.

"These are people we are dealing with and to cast them aside because we haven't work for them is not good enough. I don't think we as employers should be treating people in that way."

Parks administrator Frank Andrews told the committee most of the five men had come to the parks department from public works last November.

The department's program of routine maintenance jobs carried them through December and even into January, because the weather was unusually favorable. But now there was no work for them to do, he said.

BLOCK
. . . blames Vantreight

Mayor Mel Couvelier said it was unfair of Block to pin any blame on Vantreight because the layoff decision was made before he assumed his parks chairmanship duties recently.

Ald. John Mika replied that the mayor's comments didn't jibe with a recent newspaper report based on an interview with Vantreight, which gave the impression that the alderman made the decision and Couvelier applauded it with a "bravo."

Mika asked who had taken the action, when and why it was not brought to the committee for approval.

Couvelier said his interpretation of the article didn't match Mika's.

He insisted that he had received an initial report on the proposed layoffs from municipal administrator William Tremayne, and that Vantreight who saw it a few days later concurred with it.

It was not usual for layoffs to be discussed at the committee level, Couvelier added.

Airport Firemen Buck Overtime

Firefighters at Patricia Bay airport are threatening to refuse to work overtime after midnight Friday because they feel they have been putting in too much time beyond normal shifts.

John Hart, regional representative of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, said today the 13 firemen are upset because the overtime is mounting and airport officials are doing nothing about it.

The problem, he said, is that there are more and more special charter flights coming in before the normal nine-hour shift starts at 6 a.m. or after the evening shift ends at midnight.

As a result the employees are being called in early or asked to stay late and they are getting tired. There is also the safety factor, he added, saying there were three passenger planes in the last six months which landed without adequate protection.

The airport switched from having firefighters on the job 24 hours a day to having them work 18 in 1974.

Flower Countdown

Victoria's flower count will be launched Wednesday with nation-wide publicity including a spot on the national morning show on CBC radio.

"They're phoning me at 5:30 a.m. tomorrow for the interview," flower count chairperson Carmela Costigan said.

"It's a little early but it's worth getting up at that time to get the national coverage," she said.

The interview will be aired about 9:30 a.m. Victoria time.

Meanwhile, the flower count will start at 9 a.m. Wednesday with radio station employees taking phone calls in Eaton's window. The one number for the three phones is 381-5315.

Residents are asked to count the flowers blooming on their property and phone in the results. Some prizes are awarded on the basis of a daily draw for those who phone.

Mrs. Costigan said the CBC has promised further national coverage of the event, which ends Feb. 20.

The count is sponsored annually by Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile, 30 business and tourist officials are carrying out a daffodil blitz of Portland this week.

More than 9,000 flowers and seed packets have been handed out on Portland streets since the visit began on Sunday.

The Cliche Express Highballing Again

Question: Which "famed trouper," "renowned emissary" and "proud beauty" is "Canada's Queen of Steel and Steam?"

Answer: No, it's not a sultry stripper wearing metallic lingerie, just the good old Royal Hudson steam locomotive which is about to hit the tracks once more to trumpet another tourist promotion fanfare from the same folks who brought us the smile campaign, Captain Cook's second coming and all the rest.

The florid prose gushes from a Vancouver advertising agency on behalf of Tourism British Columbia.

In a press release the agency's writer (who must have worked as a Hollywood publicity type at some stage in his cliche-ridden career) takes more than three pages to tell us that "The Good Times Express" pulled by the Royal Hudson will begin an extensive tour of B.C. communities, Alberta and Washington state March 26.

The idea, of course, is to invite all concerned to take their holidays in B.C. this year.

But Vancouver Island steam buffs won't be seeing the renowned emissary, proud beauty etc. because the Royal Hudson is apparently too wide and too heavy for the trestles on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway.

Instead, the tourist train will be pulled here by a smaller steam loco, Engine No. 1077. Whatever that is.

Somebody in the Greater Victoria feels a whole lot better after the last Loto Canada draw — a million bucks better.

Identity of the lucky winner isn't known. Loto Canada says only the man has demanded total anonymity and has turned everything over to Esquimalt lawyer Charles Cowan.

TOWN TALK

Cowan, true to the code of the bar, wouldn't say boo today when asked about his instantly rich client. Wouldn't even say if it's a her or a him.

The winner here joins Vancouver postal worker (should that be ex-postal worker?) Brian Nutt who also came up with a $1 million ticket in the same draw.

Victorians who buy a meal at their favorite restaurant on Valentine's Day on Wednesday may be directly helping a deserving medical cause, in which the heart is much more than a symbolic target for Cupid's romantic arrows.

The receipts from meals served during the day will be donated by the Victoria Hotel Association to the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Association president and Imperial Inn manager Vern Ferguson says the 30 members are contributing in various ways.

Some are donating receipts from breakfasts, others from lunches, teas or dinners. And in some cases the revenue from lounges and pubs during certain times of the day will go to the heart foundation.

The foundation's Greater Victoria canvassers begin their Heart Month campaign Wednesday. This year's goal is $200,000.

That health information tape library operated by the health education centres with the assistance of B.C. Tel is providing a fascinating insight into what kind of health matters interest the public.

There are more than 100 taped messages ranging in length from three to six minutes.

Some have drawn more interest than others.

One called Who to Marry got 57 requests; Am I Mature drew 99 callers and What is Hypoglycemia attracted 85 curious callers.

Fifty-four folk called up to listen to a smoker's heartbeat but only five callers were interested enough to listen in on How to be Happy.

Most puzzling rash of calls, and don't ask us why, was for a nifty little tape entitled Bowlegs and Knock-knees. No less than 124 people listened to that one.

The number to call here is 592-1251.

There were six of you — three chaps and three chicks — and you dashed across the street in full view of motorists.

Who said the streaking fad had died?

Starkers, they were!

TRS-80® — the biggest name in little computers

Radio Shack's TRS-80 microcomputer can be the most valuable educational tool ever offered to students and educators, at an affordable price!

STUDENTS...

Students and parents will be amazed at the low price and the usefulness of the TRS-80 as an educational tool. It can be programmed to teach almost any subject. Students find it fascinating and entertaining, so it makes studying less interesting subjects an enjoyable experience. Computer-assisted instruction holds the student's attention, making learning an experience he will look forward to, rather than avoid. Aside from its tutorial capabilities, the TRS-80 microcomputer can be programmed by the student for use in solving a variety of problems. At little more than the cost of a sophisticated programmable calculator, students can now own, and easily operate, a true microcomputer. Today's business activities revolve around computers, so the student who learns to use one early will be better prepared to enter the business world. The TRS-80 microcomputer will also find many uses in the home, including entertainment, during its "off time" as a teacher. Radio Shack offers, today, the ultimate space-age home appliance, the TRS-80 microcomputer!

EDUCATORS...

Educators everywhere are aware of the value of computers in education. Many school systems are already taking advantage of their many virtues in training students in a variety of subjects. Until now, individual computer instruction for students has been costly, requiring an expensive mainframe computer and a number of student terminals. Radio Shack's TRS-80 microcomputer opens the door to one-on-one instruction capability, at less than the cost of most terminals, and without the need for an expensive mainframe computer. The effectiveness of computer assisted instruction can be maintained or increased at a drastic reduction in cost per student hour. Radio Shack offers a variety of TRS-80 peripherals, including printers, mini-floppy disks and more.
